

Ai Magase

"Whore of Babylon"

"The most Evil woman in the world"

"Embodiment of Evil"

"The Serpent"

Ai Magase, known as the "Whore of Babylon" is a sociopathic supernatural woman & the main antagonist of the Babylon series. Throughout the series she enacts her complex scheme to get the Suicide law passed globally & torture the series Protagonist, Seizaki Zen. This document will detail all her intellectual achievements throughout the series, as well as a complete analysis of her Suicide Law Scheme.

"I'm an evil person. I think that's the only difference between you and me. Hey Mr. Seizaki. Do you think it's impossible for people who like dogs and people who like cats to be compatible? I don't think so. If we understand each other, I'm sure we'll be able to understand the charm. We're the same. There are people who like good things, and people who like bad things. That's the only difference, the one and only difference. So, Mr. Seizaki, think about it. I want you to think about why I'm doing things like this. And I want you to understand. I don't want you to think there's no meaning to it just because an evil person is doing it. I don't want you to think that a good person couldn't understand. There's a meaning to evil. But I know it's selfish of me to say I want you to understand that soon. It's because you've been raised in a good society surrounded by good things. You're a good person through and through Mr. Seizaki. You've never thought about something bad right? You have no idea what evil is, right? So please think about it today. Please try confronting evil for the first time in your life."
-Ai Magase, The Most evil woman

Explanation of Ai's Abilities:

Ai Magase seems to only have 1 ability throughout the series, while Op is a little limited. Ai Magase has mind manipulation through whispering & aroma, as long as the other person can perceive her voice. They will instantly do whatever she wants and there's no way to resist it, it either warps the person's entire world view to fit what she wants or just makes them into robots who follow her blindly.

Her ability can also warp the emotions around a person's psyche, in episode 5 her Uncle describes how her presence caused several Boys to feel such attraction towards her that it felt like they were raped (I know he says in the scene that she never said a thing but we can assume he's misremembering or simply couldn't perceive it as we can hear her whispering during the scene).

While in the series describes her being able to change into different women whenever she wants, This cannot be assumed to be a Shape changing ability and instead is more likely to be Disguise mastery. This is because:

1. She is never shown doing this in a supernatural manner nor seen shaping changing on screen while her mind manipulation ability is very explicitly shown.
2. She never disguises herself as anybody else (other than Itsuki's wife but her appearance is unknown), nor does she change her physical shape between identities.

Why this hax is Op & why it has it's disadvantages:
The Hax is obviously op; as shown in the series She can walk in a crowd and talk to 64 random people and make them all commit suicide.
While this hax has a lot of advantages, It has some drawbacks. While she can technically use it on a mass of people, she has to direct her speech towards the specific person as hearing it in passing has no effect on the person (Shown when Seizaki hears it in passing in multiple recordings but is unaffected).
The hax also often requires her to have to physically track the person down she wants to use the hax on. For example, when she wanted to send the US president into insanity. She had to sneak into the white house herself, completely undetected by all of the cameras & guards. In order to get into the translation room with the president. This means she is much more likely to be discovered & if her ability was found out, they could gag or knock her out & she'd be completely defenceless.

Additional Feats:

•Before the series began, Ai was in prostitution presumably for a couple months or maybe even a year before disappearing to work with Itsuki. She was also able to very quickly adapt to the work life/environment of being a prostitute. Prostitution is a stupidly shady business, with things like: abuse, rape & torture being very common. Considering Ai was in the business for so long she probably had to experience all these things in order to make it to politician level Prostitution. This also means she would have to sleep with men who she considers Vulgar or disgusting, even if it was multiple men. Despite this, Ai never shows trauma from any of these experiences and acts the same before, during & after prostitution. It's also stated (in episode 3) that she would often adapt her behaviours, outfits & personality to the person she's sleeping with. In quote "becoming a completely different woman" each time. This is obviously also Acting skills & disguise mastery as she has to put on a disguise every time which makes her look like a totally different girl each time as well as put on such a good act that Ryūichirō considers it magic and not a disguise.

•Ai Recognises the meaning behind Seizaki Zen's name means "just" & "good".
(VCI & Linguistic Knowledge)

•During the Series Ai Magase formulates an in-depth psychoanalysis of Seizaki Zen (we know she formulated this analysis as she is shown to target her actions at specific aspects of Seizaki's psychology to manipulate or play with him.
Firstly we can see that Ai was able to profile Seizaki's views of Justice through his name "Seizaki Zen" means "Right" or "Just". From this she discerns that Seizaki has gained quite a childish view of good & bad. Due to his name he probably came to believe he himself is just and good, never questioning it beyond that point. Due to his parents giving him a name that literally means "Right" or "Just", He assumes that his role is to be a good person. Or to be just & right. This explains why he became a prosecutor, a prosecutor's role is to uphold justice by making sure those who are wronged go to jail. His name meaning "just" shows how he views these actions as fair & good. From this she can also infer that Seizaki himself has never questioned or thought about what the concept of evil means, as he's believed himself to be good all his life. He's thought he's never needed to understand what evil is as he understood what good was. This profile of Seizaki's view of good and evil is so in-depth that Ai Used to be able to anticipate Seizaki's Thoughts, Actions & reactions to specific scenarios. Also knowing exactly what needs to happen to him in order to cause his suicide.

•Throughout the series, Ai has shown the ability to completely sneak through or out of places without being seen or recorded by a single person. For example in episode 5, Ai made a man kill himself on a busy street in Tokyo.

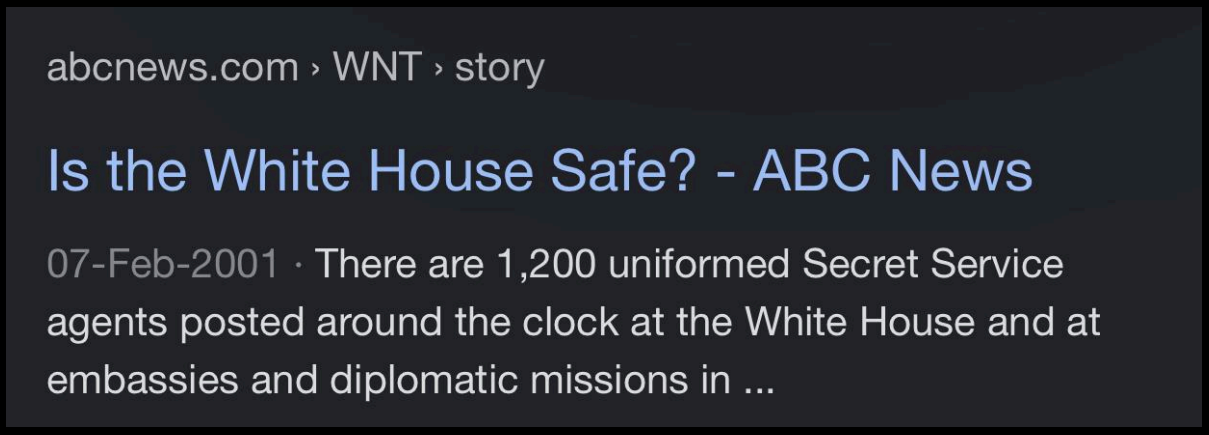

She wasn't seen by a single person nor was she picked up by a single security camera, and we know in this scene she wasn't in disguise & Sezaki knows what she looks like at this point. This means she was able to avoid the line of sight of every single camera & person in the area. While in this incident there weren't that many people, cameras still should've seen her. In Tokyo alone there are 24,500+ constantly running surveillance cameras, each of which have facial recognition technology. Meaning while sneaking away from the crime scene she would've had to have constantly noticed cameras & visualised their line of sight & placed herself in their blind spot.

She additionally does this in episode 11 & 12, as she is able to sneak around the white house without a single camera noticing her (while she was in disguise, white house CCTV has facial recognition which would nullify this disguise if she was seen). Additionally she wouldn't be on the guest list, which all guards would be intimately familiar with, meaning if any guard spotted her, they would've arrested or shot her on the spot. While it's unknown how many cameras are in the whitehouse, considering its one of the most secure buildings in the room we can assume there are at least 4 cameras in every room (1 for each angle).
This plus the fact we know there are 1,200 special agents at the white house.

Now considering there are 132 rooms in the white house, that means a total of 528 cameras. And in every room there should be 9-10 guards in every room. Magase when going through the Whitehouse would have to notice all the hidden cameras in each of the rooms, as well as the perspective of every guard. Ai would then have to very quickly visualise the exact line of sight of all the guards & ensure she is not spotted at all by any guards or her face spotted by any camera.

•During the second episode Ai is arrested by Sezaki, at this point she is able to infer the Exact position of their investigation

(We know this as Her manipulation during the interrogation is to make Sezaki obsessed with her, which she wouldn't do if she thought they had other leads that'd be easier for them to follow).

Firstly Ai can infer that their plan to prove the Prostitution probably relies on her as Fumino tried to interview her while in a different disguise & now Sezaki took her in after she left the hotel. Now Fumino & Sezaki were both very hasty when they arrested her, Fumio following her home to confront her & Sezaki arresting her at the hotel. This implies that they don't know any other method in which they can get a solid case against Ano & Nomaru. And the only way the prostitutes themselves can be of any help is if they come forward and admit to the prostitution. Thus Sezaki must want her to confess to prostitution & that she's their only reliable lead.

•Throughout the series a lot of her plans rely on her knowledge on specific subjects. Which I will list below:

-Political: Via her prediction of the international suicide law debate that Magase understood the poltics of every country in the debate including reasons why they feel the way they do on the sucide law. This is the same with Itsuki's debate on the suicide law prior with the heads of Tokyo. She understood every reason every politician would give.

She also understood what made Itsuki so beloved in politics & how he was able to gain such influence from his: manor, personality & other aspects of him which made him an ideal mayor.

-Sociology: Ai has shown an understanding of social norms and how they can be changed over time, she use's this knowledge as she makes suicide socially acceptable.
In all her debates she also shows understanding of society & how society perceived issues like suicide.

-Psychology: Her entire manipulation of Sezaki required knowledge on psychology, such as understanding how he internalised the belief that he is good from his name & how this affected the rest of his decision making.
She understands social psychology as uses conformity to normalise the suicide law by making the near majority of japan agree with it.

-Legal: Magase was able to design Itsuki's election & the suicide of the 64 people in such a way that technically he has not broken any crimes.

-Forensic: At the deaths of Fumino & Inaba, not a single trace of Magase was found. No fingerprint's, no hairs, no nothing. This implies Magase has an understanding of forensics & was able to completely scrub any place she visits clean by knowing exactly everything forensics would look for.

-Historical: a lot of the reasons for the countries opinion on the suicide law requires understanding of each countries histories & hownit affects their current view.
In the Itsuki debate he explains how in Ancient Rome suicide was ok for the most part & with rhe introduction of Christianity it slowly got villified. This explanation requires an understanding of history surrounding suicide.

-Philosophical: During the Itsuki debate she provided moral & philosophical counters to each of the arguments the politicians would provide as well as predicting the philosophical debate the Countries would have on the suicide law

(VCI)

•Throughout the series Ai Has to deal with the stress of likely being tortured or killed if her plan fails. This is consistent throughout the series as for example: If the politicians initially knew she was going to betray them, they would likely torture her to ask for her motivations. Or just kill her for being a problem, this is also true when she makes the Suicide law public or When she starts manipulating mayors in america. There's a high chance throughout the series that if Itsuki gets very lucky or if she gets unlucky and her plan fails. Her hax wouldn't be able to save her if she is knocked out, taped around the mouth and tortured to get her to write down answers. Despite this stress during the entire series during the entire series Magase never breaks act nor shows any sign of frustration or pain.
(Intrapersonal Emotional management, Mental fortitude, stress tolerance, impulse control & discipline)

•Ai is able to predict the entire Debate between the seven countries: USA, Japan, Germany, Uk, France, Canada & Italy. Including the conclusion they'd reach.
Firstly Ai Knows the countries general stance on the Suicide law.
Italy & Canada agree with the law
USA, Japan & Germany are Neutral on the law.
UK & France are against.

Before she can predict how the debate will go Ai has to deduce the reasons behind their stance.
-Canada probably agrees with the law as they have a history of enacting progressive policies which the majority of the world has usually been against, such as homosexuality. Passing a law on homosexuality shows the belief that people should have autonomy over their body & actions, for example who they like & don't like. The suicide law corresponds with this as one of it's central philosophies is the choice on when you should die. This is a more liberal way of thinking as it allows the individual freedom in their life, which corresponds with Canadian ideologies. Thus Canada agrees due to progressiveness & liberal beliefs.

-Italy, Italy doesn't necessarily agree but the country has shown a lot of faith in liberalism under its current government, meaning they believe laws like this which control the lives of individual people are not things for the government to comment on. If they are good then it'll bring benefits, if it's bad it'll die out.
-USA, due to Ai's profile on the president (look above for explanation on that) he knows an issue like this with so many angles under such short time would confuse the presidnet & he won't have had enough time to come up with a conclusion yet.
-Germany, Germany laws show that Euthanasia or assisted suicide is illegal but suicide itself is not. This shows confusion on the matter with suicide as the laws seem to be a double standard, meaning Germany is neutral as they don't really know.
-Japan, Japan's government doesn't necessarily agree but the law has become so popular that they can't reject it without causing massive scandal in the country Itsuki who may win due to public opinion. Meaning they just want to keep everything peaceful & will neither agree or disagree.
-UK, the UK believes in the obligation of Nobles. Meaning nobles have the right to show to those below them the correct behaviour for society. This and one of their central beliefs is that Death is something should always be mourned, meaning they can't legalise suicide otherwise it shows death shouldn't be mourned but accepted.
-France would disagree for the same reason as the UK.

Now for predicting the Debate. She knows everyone will give their reasons on if the suicide law is right or wrong, during this Germany due to the confusion & inexperience with suicide in the nation. Will agree so they can see how the law works & if it doesn't they'll retract it. Japan due to their desire to keep everything peaceful but also inability to form their own judgment upon the suicide law will ask the countries that they will go with whatever the conclusion of the debate is... but the vote will must be unanimous. They do this so that they can maintain peace between the nations as well as keep their alliances while also avoiding war.
Next the US president who is trying to judge the morality of the law will say that to judge the morality of the law you first have to judge what is right & wrong.
They will most likely debate all factors for what is good & evil: universal good/evil acts, moral problems, societal aspects, biological aspects, etc ec. Which will lead to the president coming to the conclusion that the human aversion to the suicide law is correct as mortality is dependent on life.

Suicide law Scheme:

Aims of the scheme:

Get the suicide law legalised gobally, Keep herself safe from Assassination/murder/kidnapping & send Seizaki Zen into insanity/Suicide.

To achieve these goals Ai must:

Gets other countries on board with the law, Make sure Seizaki questions the meaning of justice, Ensure Seizaki becomes obsessed with catching her (so that he disregards his family and will be more emotional) send all Seizaki's friends insane, force Sezaki into a position where he kills someone & use Kaika Itsuki as a face for the suicide law (to ensure her safety from death).

Preparation: Political integration

For Ai Magase to even start this scheme, has to gain a political position. To do this she joins the prostitution business. She joins the prostitution business presumably for a couple of months or maybe even a year, in order to make it so she sleeps with a politician. When she makes it to the point where she sleeps with Itsuki, At this point she controls Itsuki to go along with her plan. Ai also learns about the Shinniki Initiative, the idea to create a city called Shinniki which can act as a testing ground for Nations to try new laws. Also learning how Nomaru is using Itsuki as a face for the initiative. Ai realising she makes the decision to use this, adapts her plans to revolve more around the initiative. Thus, she makes Itsuki suggest to the other men to use her to get votes from the other parties. From here Ai is forced to sleep with the other opposition, adapting her behaviour to suit the people she was sleeping with. During this time to ensure that she is unable to be traced and discovered by public police forces, she wears a completely different disguise between each job. These disguises are so good that Nomaru believes them to be supernatural in nature. Her acting, make up, outfit, hair. It's all different and unique each time that it seems supernatural. While this is happening Magase locates Shin Inaba, the antithesis of a drug company called Supiri, who decides that the company can be used to elevate her plan. She makes sure to go there publicly (meaning she ensures neighbours & cameras see her) while also going with Tamakazu Ano. She decides to go with Ano because he's the Private Secretary of Ruichiro Nomaru aka the leader of the Liberal justice party and the main person behind the Shinniki Initiative. She does this as a trap for Later one, which will Rope Sezaki into the Shinniki initiative conspiracy & thus start the beginning of her manipulation.

Also while she's there she controls Inaba to create the Drug Known as "Nyux", which will be useful for after the Preparation is complete. She also wears a disguise during this visit.

This is the point where Magase decides to start her manipulation of Zen Sezaki. To do this she first has to get His attention, so after Inaba fulfils his purpose with "Nyux", she gets him to scribble on the inside of a sealed secret drug document the letter "F" thousands of times with blood, hair, skin & fingernail particles. Then making him kill himself in his apartment with blasting classical music. She predicts due to the fact she knows Supiri had created a Drug called "Agras" which they had been falsely advertising as more effective than it really was. As they had bribed multiple universities to make fake data to make Agras seem more effective, This and the fact Sezaki's precinct is nearby. She could predict that soon The company would quickly be discovered for breaking Pharmaceutical law, leading to Distinct public prosecutor office team raiding the company, during this raid the document would be picked up, someone at the distinct would probably see the Blood & thus leading to Sezaki or someone close to him (which would rope him into it anyways) investigating the Document. The document obviously acts as a lead (a trap) for Sezaki to follow (fall into) which will bring him Closer to the Shinniki Initiative & thus… HER.

As Magase predicted, Sezaki followed the trail & investigated the document, going to Inaba's home. The playing of classical music ensures that Sezaki would enter & wouldn't just dismiss the lack of Response from Inaba as him not being home. As Ai anticipates that upon hearing it, Sezaki would instantly assume that Inaba is in there. As nobody leaves on classical music so loudly when not home. This leads to Seizaki getting inside & finding Inaba dead in his home alone. From this he & Fumino start an investigation with the police. From this investigation Sezaki discovers that a couple (The couple being Magase & Ano from before) visited Inaba before his death & as Magase planned, They identify the man as Tamakazu Ano & link it back to the leader of the liberal justice party. Ruichiro Nomaru. And with this Sezaki will talk to his Chief Yasutaka Morinaga about pursuing the possibility that Nomaru is perhaps responsible for the death. From here On, Sezaki has completely fallen into Ai's trap & will now inevitably become involved with the Shinniki Initative & thus with Her.

While Sezaki is investigating, Ai goes to sleep with Shinzo Chijima. Whose head of the construction contractors & the head of a voting block in Tokyo. Ai Sleeps & controls him, sending all his Votes to Itsuki. Obviously going in a disguise. As Magase goes into an apartment after sleeping with Chijima, she's surprised by Fumino who asks her a multitude of questions. Recognising Fumino as Sezaki's coworker, she decides to use this situation to boost Sezaki's obsession with her. So She controls Fumino to kill himself & send Sezaki a message of farewell. Anticipating that Sezaki would never for a second think that Fumino killed himself. Instead deciding to further his investigation into Nomaru.

During this Magase is taken to Rioan where Japan Doctors league & Tokyo trade union confederation would be sleeping before playing golf together the next day together. While in disguise she has sex with members of the Trade Union (who granted elderly & disgusting men) to get them to give their votes to the Liberal justice party. The next day she prepares to leave when suddenly Sezaki approaches her, asking to detain her. While she didn't plan for this situation she decides to adapt to it and use it as a chance to gather understanding about Sezaki & implant the beginnings of her manipulation.

Later Sezaki interrogates her. She gives forward the fake Name "Emiko Hiramatsu". When Sezaki asks her if it's her real name she deflects the topic by telling Sezaki the meaning of his name, being that it means "Just" & "good". Bringing specific attention to this part of his name.
Next Sezaki asks what her relationship with Ano is, in which she responds that he's an acquaintance of her grandma.
Next Sezaki asks if she's known him for very long in which she responds that she hasn't known him for very long & that she met him for the first time when she first moved to Tokyo about 2 years ago.
Next Sezaki asks if she's been seeing Ano on a regular basis, in which she responds saying that she has & that he showed her nice apartments when she first got to japan.
Sezaki then asks why Ano treated her too nicely. She then fakes an expression of sadness & guilt, repeating the words "how come" a couple times before smiling again & saying "Maybe because I'm his friend's granddaughter."
Sezaki then asks if she now lives in one of the apartments Ano showed her, she responds by saying yes.
Sezaki then asks again why he does so much for her. In which she fakes an expression of sadness & guilt. Looking down in shame. Before saying (with an obviously forced fake smile) that "he's a really…. nice person."

If it isn't clear at this point what Magase is doing, she's trying to subtly provoke Sezaki in order to make him more obsessed with him. At this point Magase inferred that She's probably his only lead, thus she fakes expressions of Sadness & false happiness which she knows Itsuki will perceive. She does this to indicate to Sezaki that he is incredibly close to the proof he needs but still can't access it. This will make him focus on her as their main lead & thus put more engagement into her.

Ai continues to do this until eventually she says she'll sign her testimony but in return Sezaki must answer some questions for her (this is also meant to stress Sezaki out & make him more susceptible to suggestion, which is also why she says she'll only sign it out of pity).
She asks some basic questions such as aspects of his childhood, if he is married, his hobbies, etc ec.
Before asking him if he thinks contraception is bad? He says no & that having kids carelessly it would be difficult to raise them.
She then asks if giving birth is good? In which Sezaki says yes & that it should be praised.
She then says then it must be bad not to have them, she anticipates this statement would provoke Sezaki & make him say differences in values should be respected & how you should accept others with different & even incompatible values & if you don't it can lead to war.
Ai then asks if there is a person who thinks war is bad & a person who thinks war is good, should they accept each other's values? Sezaki can't answer it.
Ai further asks how having children & not having children is a good thing, then what about killing children? Then provokes Sezaki who becomes adamant it's bad. In which Ai responds agreeing & emphasising how Murder is bad.

She then points out how in his name, the character 正義 means Justice & the character 禅 means good deeds. And how his name doesn't forgive bad deeds. She then finally asks, what is justice?

What Ai is doing here seems random but has a purpose, initially by subtly annoying Sezaki she is making him more subtle to suggestion, manipulation & idea planting as he gets more emotional. Once she's done this, by asking her questions she plants the question of "What is good or bad?" As she points out the inconsistency in his morals & beliefs. Then she emphasises his name & to an extent who he is, someone who is good & just. Doesn't forgive bad deeds, this idea planted in Sezaki's head will be useful for later, when he can't forgive his own bad deeds.

Her asking "what is justice?" is meant to keep this question in his head on a conscious level, making him think about this & reach a conclusion.

After this Ai mind controls a guard into sleep & escapes. After this Sezaki will be forced to give a progress report on the case & in which Ruichiro Nomaru will be there, when he finds out Sezaki suspects him as being responsible he'll want to clear his Name & Ai Anticipates he'll explain the Shinniki Initiative to Sezaki, including his plan to use Itsuki to become mayor & control the Shinniki Initiative from the shadows. Due to Ai concealing her involvement in the death of Fumino & Inaba, when questioned Nomaru will deny that he was responsible, saying multiple reasons as to why not. Also saying that he put Sezaki in charge of the investigation as they were curious on what killed Inaba, asking Sezaki to continue the investigation.
This will obviously anger Sezaki as he would essentially be ignoring political fraud & organised crime & prostitution.
This will cause Sezaki to question his job but also his role, for the longest time he became a prosecutor to ensure justice but now he finds out he's been working for criminals & has to ignore all these crimes to catch the killer of his friend. Which makes him further question justice (All this existential questioning was organised by Magase as she was the one who got Sezaki involved to begin with & ensured he would begin questioning the meaning of justice).

Ai Magase predicts Sezaki will continue the investigation & also foresees his thought process. She knows due to the utilitarian arguments of the Shinniki Initiative, that you can't say it's 100% bad. However whoever killed Fumino & faked it as suicide is in his mind 100% evil & needs to be brought to justice, thus he will continue the case.

Through Itsuki's charisma & aura, he was able to win the election, which gave Ai near complete control over Tokyo. Immediately after this, Ai makes Itsuki & all his advisors go into hiding with all their election documents. This is to ensure protection as what they are about to do will probably lead to some potential assassination attempts, also ensuring nobody can prove they use Magase to sleep with contractors & give them votes. Thus preventing Itsuki being fired for election fraud.

A day later, in disguise Ai Magase controls 64 random people from the streets to climb to the top of city hall & stand on the ledge.
Then Ai gets Itsuki to speak through the giant monitor on city hall. She gets Itsuki to talk about Shinniki to speak on the importance of it, how it'll bring humanity forward. He then speaks about how humans learned to create fire, then through trial & error learned to control fire & after they obtained fire, human civilization progressed rapidly. And how this is the second fire & how it's more dangerous than the first & how it's much more feared but how we can control it through courage. And this “second fire”, is death. He talks about how humans have been scared of death, and how they’ve been trying to avoid death & prevent death for a long time now. And how everything tells us to avoid death no matter the effects on mental/physical health but how this is damaging & how staying alive for no reason is flawed. This thinking will cause collapse of human kind & death has value which should be recognised. Itsuki then declares its first law will be the right to death.

Then Magase makes all the people jump off the roof top, smiling as they do so.

Magase's goal here is to normalise death, rip away the innate value system & human urge to continue living. Which is why she makes all the people commit suicide & have Itsuki give his speech, by doing this she can begin to shift social norms as death can become a more normalised part of society. Showing to the public that by overcoming this outdated value, they are progressing society forward.

Ai had also ensured that through this speech Itsuki would’ve committed zero crimes, the stolen documents can’t be linked to him other than the fact they disappeared at the same time. All the suicides are random people off the street who have no relation to Itsuki & In his speech he never mentioned anything about them so you can’t prove he caused their death & obviously legalising suicide isn’t a crime. This ensures that even if Itsuki was caught, he couldn’t be arrested for anything.

And with the Suicide law Instated, We can move to the main part of Magase’s scheme.

Main Scheme: Global Suicide Normalisation

Itsuki’s speech had been so effective that mass Suicide has ovetaken Japan, with the number of suicides in the 24 hours since the law climbed to 236 which is 4 times the normal rate. In public polls he’s gotten 3.4% of Japan's population or 94,535 people to agree.

During this time Ai gets Itsuki to record a video in which he will be speaking to Japan. In this video he says in 12 days time he will hold a parliamentary election where they can discuss the suicide law & elect his own parliament.
For this Ai had prepared an election system, to summarise the 3 clauses:

1. Voting is done by local residents, however there is no restriction on the residents who do the voting. Meaning any can get the right to vote on the spot, from criminals to babies.
2. Anyone with the right to vote can run for an election
3. Every candidate must give their stance on the suicide law, then they will be split into peole who support & people who are against.

All these laws are incredibly deliberate. The first clause is to ensure that everyone can vote, including criminals, the insane or the youth. Essentially people more likely to agree with the suicide law.
The second & Third clause work together, as Itsuki needs a large & powerful parliament to back him up for later stages of the scheme. Thus by getting a large number of candidates & then splitting them into agree & disagree, Itsuki will instantly gain a large parliament as everyone who agreed will become part of it. Then he can manipulate opposition teams to join him & also win over more of the public.

Ai also predicts due to Itsuki betrayaling him & hurting his ego, Nomaru will run against him in the election.
She also anticipates that Sezaki will have created a new Police & prosecutor team with the specific focus of Charging & Arresting Itsuki. She additionally anticipates that around this time Sezaki would've come to the conclusion that Sezaki has no what Justice is but believes that continuing to think about what is right & what is justice. And that's what drives his motivation.

Ai then gets Itsuki to send a message, in the message Itsuki proposes the idea that they should have a public debate the day before the election at the NHC studio, this debate should be broadcast globally & that everyone agreeing/disagreeing should be welcome.

After this Ai calls Sezaki & asks if he plays games. She begins to talk about how in RPG games she becomes the hero, how the hero rises up against the evil devil who took over the world. The hero does this to save the world & bring happiness, even if nobody supports or helps or understands him & how she wants to like that. This makes Sezaki adamantly say she can't & the only way she can bring happiness is by turning herself in. Ai responds by saying she misses Sezaki before making a man kill himself & sneaking off without a single witness.

While Ai does this for sadistic pleasure she also does it as enforcement, for later parts of her manipulation with Sezaki she needs to have Sezaki be firmly attached to his beliefs that she is evil & because she's a murderer, she is evil. Thus by calling herself the hero, someone who is good & just. Sezaki thinks what Ai is saying is delusional & instead adopts the persona himself (as Ai made the description of the hero match the scenario Sezaki's in with Ai). Sezaki would now have the idea planted in his head that he is the hero, that is he is in the right & that he could never be the devil & act like Magase & Murder.

The next day, the public debate happens. As Sezaki says, Itsuki or rather Magase, had foreseen every argument that would be used against the suicide law:

1. Socio-Economic argument, in Japan 20+ thousand people every year in Japan & the loss in GDP is just over 1 trillion yen per year. Suicide negatively affects japanese economy as it also leads to a decrease in consumer spending & decrease in effective demand.
2. The Moral/Ethical argument, morals are the rules that regulate the relations between those in society. If suicde becomes acceptable then society will collapse, as murder as well as Suicide are violations of the rules. People would die suddenly if suicide were permitted, everything thats built on mutal trust between people will collapse.
3. The Legal argument, abating suicide is a crime & the suicide law is essentially abating suicide as you are encouraging people on a mass scale to kill themseleves. If its normalised then citizens on a mass scale would be committing the same crime as well, as they abate their friends or family with suicide.
4. The Universal Emotion argument, everyone in the world wants to live their life happily. Due to this humans cannot remain calm when it comes to death, they cannot process their own or others death. Meaning nobody could force the law appropriately unless they had zero emotions whatsoever. Which everyone does.

Magase had prepared direct logical counters to each other these arguments:

1. Socio-Economic counter, this argument stems from the fear that there'll be huge economic losses with the law. However the law doesn't mean the number of suicides would increase. In society people commit suicide as a way to escape their problems but with the law, suicide wouldn't be running away but a choice. For example, in Canada marijuana was legalised last year because they considered it counterproductive to prohibit it. As its rates of usage was lower in the Netherlands where it was legal.
2. Moral/Ethical counter, while morals are yes the rules built between the societies of people. But morals often change, as morals are not universal. Homosexuality was illegal & seen as morally bad for some time but is now widely accepted. While some things are always wrong, suicide is not one of them. The law will make people confront & understand suicide for the very first time, which is completely correct from a moral standpoint.

3. Legal counter, while it would be illegal now the law often changes. And in present day in japan suicide is not a crime, it's a felony but it is impossible to charge suicide as a crime. Them he asks "Is suicide something you should regulate through the law?", in ancient rome suicide was accepted if there was a valid reason to do so. With christianity, suicide became a sin which was discriminated against by society & now we can move past these old laws.
4. The Universal Emotion counter, the centre of this argument is that due to emotion with the suicide law people might make a mistake & kill themselves & regret it later. However the law destroys the stigma with suicide & means people will be more open to talk about when their feeling suicidal & their emotions regarding it. Meaning less mistakes will be made as they will be choosing death by their own will & not due to emotion.

From here Ai in Disguise as Itsuki's wife, brings up Itsuki's child. After seeing the video from Itsuki's child on how he doesn't want his dad to kill himself, Ai instantly foresaw that Nomaru in order to win the debate would bring the child in order to guilt trip the public but also would get the boy to run in the election with him as adviser. So adapting to this, Ai disguised himself as the child's mother & ensured Itsuki would say the exact right words to counter this. She had also anticipated that Sezaki would break the law & infiltrate the news station in order to kidnap Itsuki & stop him. So by going that she can also put a stop to this plan as well.

Itsuki then says that he will allow this as he was well aware that anyone can sign up, he then goes up to the boy & asks him to take off his mask. Saying he was wrong & that he is his son. He tells his son please not to apologise, when the son asks why he says how he didn't think he could accept the truth if he told him & that was wrong of him.
He then mentions how the boy heart (Itsuki's son has a heart condition) can't take any more of it & will die soon, but he can kill himself to save his som as if he commits suicide he will be unable to donate his heart. So he thought it'd be so much better if he could. He then says how this is all being broadcasted & how so many people will try to help him any way they can. Saying how he wants it to be normal for not just him but for anyone to be able to kill themselves to save another human being.

This completely nullifies Nomaru's plan, as the public's guilt & sympathy is now completely directed towards Itsuki. As well, the boy's sadness has been managed & while he cries he accepts his father will kill himself.
This causes multiple people saying they're willing to sacrifice themselves by giving their hearts so they can save Itsuki's son.

After this Ai, knowing the two police officers that are escorting her, are probably part of Sezaki's team. She whispers in their ear making one kill themselves the other one has a strong desire to kill themselves. The reason she gives the second one a strong desire to kill themselves is because she knows he's a close friend of Sezaki & she wants him to reach Sezaki so he can watch him kill himself & also see the effects of Magase's power.
She does this to ensure Sezaki will no matter what, never gain any empathy for the suicide law & will stay firm that suicide is wrong.

Magase notices a police officer hiding & knocks her out, kidnapping her.
Afterwards she messages Sezaki a video. In the video she has the police officer near naked on the table, with their eyes & mouth covered & arms & legs tied with ropes. As she draws dotted lines around her limbs, Magase begins to speak about the hero she mentioned previously. How the hero will save the world all by himself even if nobody helps or bothers to understand him.
She mentions how something wonderful would be people not just understanding the hero's dreams, but their feelings. And then everyone can help & understand & save the world together.
She says how she's not that different to him, but that she's a bad person. She then uses an axe to cut off a limb. He then says if he thinks it's impossible for people who like dogs & people who like cats to be compatible. She says how the one & only difference is there are people who like good things & people who like bad things, but that we can still admire the beauty of the other. She cut off another limb. She says how she wants Sezaki to think about why she's doing this & wants him to understand her. She cuts off another limb, she then asks why does society think it's bad to kill someone. And what is bad & what is evil.

This may seem like the ramblings of an insane person but they have purpose. Magase anticipates how lonely Sezaki will feel when nobody will believe him or understand when he explains how Magase killed his team. By talking about the hero again, Sezaki identifies with him & firmly places himself as good. Ai then puts herself on the opposite end, describing herself as evil, which she knows is how Sezaki has always viewed her. When she talks about why can't they understand each other, why is she evil & him good, she is forcing the subconscious question in his mind to the front of "What is Good & evil?". The reason she's cutting someone into pieces with an axe while explaining this is because she needs everything she says to constantly be flashing in his mind, attaching it to a traumatic memory & feeling of guilt means he'll constantly think about it. Additionally, it makes him more desperate & more obsessed with Magase, with catching her & stopping her.

All of this will be useful for later on. As now, Sezaki has never been more certain on the belief that he is good & Magase is evil, but now he needs to figure out what makes him good & Magase bad.
This experience traumatises Sezaki heavily & he begins to intensely hallucinate his dead colleagues talking to him. As well as hallucinating everyone in the street as Magase herself.

Due to Itsuki's words at the Suicide law debate, 48% of the population now support the law with 48% against & 2% undecided.

Magase used Itsuki to announce the release of a suicide drug, as well a support centre for suicide. As Magase anticipated, Suicide rates have began to decrease now the law had been passed. Suicide has now been completely normalised in Shinniki & has began spreading all across japan. Even the Japanese government lacks the influence to dismantle it.

Before leaving for Germany, Ai Sends Sezaki, an egg containing a human eye. She does this to prevent Sezaki giving up his obsession with her out of care for his family as the feeling of disgust he feels from the eye will heavily remind him of his feelings regarding Ai Magase.

Ai sneaks into Germany via disguise & gets a phone, she knows the Mayor of Harvard will be visiting an end of life day care & called it when he arrived, asking to speak to him. On this recording she predicts later on that Sezaki will hear it so she speaks to him on it. She mentions how he knows we don't get called to the god side, how god doesn't exist & "when we die, it's over."
Now this wording is very specific, Ai is trying to make Sezaki associate Death with endings, so by saying "when we die, it's over" she is subtextually saying "dying is the ending of life". She needs Sezaki to associate Death with Endings, for a later stage of the manipulation.
She also calls two other city mayors & gives them the urge to pass the law.

The reason she chose to pass the law in Harvard is because Harvard has some importance as it was once regarded as a trading hub & being the insurance capital of the world. This means the government has more inclination to investigate as if something bad happens there a large portion of the world's economy could be servely hit. She makes all the cities pass the suicide law in a similar time frame so the government would believe its a conspiracy & put more effort into investigation. This also means the government would look into the history behind the Itsuki election & Suicide law & would find out about Sezaki & his testimony on Ai Magase. Meaning they'd bring him in.
Ai then anticipates due to his strong obsession with Ai & stopping the suicide law, Sezaki would ask to become part of the FBI so he can stop her. She anticipates due to his: obsession, impressive history, he speaks english & knowledge on the case they would allow him to join despite not being an American citizen.

At this point Itsuki holds a press conference. He speaks about how 7 cities in the world have currently adopted the suicide law & how he will hold a meeting between the 7 cities in 4 days in Shinniki. Where they will debate the suicide law.

She further foresees that due to the effects the suicide law in japan & on America, there will be a meeting between the US, UK, Germany, Japan, France, Italy & Canada. Ai also predicted the entire outcome of the debate & the conclusion they'd all reach. Look In the "Additional Feats" section for the full analysis.
Anyway she predicts The President will come to the conclusion that morality is dependent on life, however the meeting is interrupted.

Itsuki's debate has ended before the presidents & Hes made a call to the president. He says there's a woman who wants to commit suicide but is unsure & thay he can't speak to her as she thinks Shinniki wants her to commit suicide. So he asks the president to talk to her & help her make up her mind.
Before all this Ai had sneaked into the white house.

Ai anticipated the president would tell the girl to stay alive a little longer so he can get the answer & if the answer is to die he will do it with her, after the call ends he would then realise the answer (to continue to exist is good & to end is bad) & call back. In which Ai will have snuck into the communications room during the speech & killed everyone there. And then she would control the president by giving him a strong urge to commit suicide. Sezaki being paranoid would go check on the communicators, he would then realise what must've happened to the president.

The president would then get up & leave, running up to the top of the white house, Sezaki would follow, also going to the top.

Sezaki would realise the situation, if the president kills himself due to what he said previously, if he kills himself he's telling the girl to kill herself. And thus the US would saying that suicide & death is completely ok. Here Magase knew Sezaki would've come to the same conclusion on good & evil as The President.
Thus Sezaki has to shoot the president to prevent this message from being given across.
Upon shooting the President & killing him, Sezkai has a philosophical crisis. He had realised that ending life is bad, an objectively evil & bad act. Especially when killing a good person... but he had just done it.
Sezaki had believed himself to be the hero, to be a good & just man who had always been in the right but here. He did an act that was completely evil. He starts to hyperventilate & sweat aggressively, during this Ai Magase walks out the walkway, staying just out of the helicopters.
She says he's so very bad. Sezaki gets furious & Points a gun at Ai, Ai perceives however that Sezaki will not shoot her. She points a finger gun at him & asks what is the meaning of good, he responds it to continue. Ai nods & asks what's the meaning of evil? Sezaki says the meaning of evil is to end it. Ai nods again.
Sezaki at this moment completely perceives himself as evil, he has committed in his mind an objectively evil act & he can't shoot Magase. It would be hypocritical for him to see himself as any different to her, they are both people who have ended lives. So with no other choice, Sezaki shoots himself in the head. Ending his life vis suicide.

Magase escapes & the suicide law continues.
We don't know what Ai did with her scheme after this moment but its implied she suceeded in getting Death & suicide to be gobally normalised. As well as achieving her goal of making Sezaki commit suicide.
And with that, the scheme is concluded.

Difficulty Solving the Whore of Babylon Case

Conditions to solve the case:

To solve the Whore of Babylon case you must:

1. Identify Magase as the mastermind
2. Locate and arrest Itsuki
3. Locate and arrest Magase
4. Prevent the Suicide law from being passed in other nations around the globe

The first condition is quite easy as all you have to do is either Ask Nomaru about the three women and he'll basically tell you or simply deduce that all the Women are the same person in disguise.

The second condition is very difficult though, Itsuki throughout the series technically never commits a single crime (that's possible to trace back to him). As all Magase's crimes were perfect, other than maybe prostitution (which even then, is stated to be a very weak charge), Itsuki has barely any traceable crimes.

Three is also much more difficult, While discovering Ai's existence isn't too much of a hassle. And you can gain information on her past from her uncle, beyond that there's barely anything you could do. Ai For one has a supernatural ability which is very hard to deduce the exact limitations & nature of the ability (as many people give conflicting information on how the ability works and makes it sound much more powerful than it actually is). This makes confronting her near impossible as she'd just send you insane in an instant.

Ai Magase's influence:

Ai herself has lots of influence. She has several major Japanese Politicians & their parties under her control, she also has control over the Drug company of Supiri which she was able to use to produce a suicide drug. Due to having complete control over Itsuki who is the current mayor of Tokoyo & due to his polities has scared the Japanese government into submission. Thus giving her some control over the Japanese government.
She also has control of some states in the US as she has some of their mayors under her control and by the end of the series, it's implied she had gained control over the American government including the president.

This makes locating, assassinating or countering her extremely difficult. As she has eyes and ears everywhere, she'll be able to gain information about things with very little difficulty due to the fact so many powerful officials and thus institutions are under her control. Locating or Assassinating her is also incredibly difficult as she'd have access to secret hideaways which only powerful officials know about which she could reside in, making her near impossible to track.

Also due to her Disguise mastery, which is described as being so good it makes people she can literally shapeshift. This means she could walk around in public with literally an entire police department knowing her location and hunting her down and they still can't find her.

The case also has a great corruption factor, corrupting multiple mayors in the US & nearly all major Japanese politicians.

Supernatural Aspect:
If you're a detective who doesn't believe in Supernatural or Religion you definitely will not be able to solve the case. Ai Used her Hax to convince 60 random people to commit suicide at the same time, if you don't believe in the supernatural there is literally no way to figure out how she did this. As the facts contradict all realistic possibilities.

Additionally Figuring out Ai's ability is quite difficult as figuring out its limitations or how exactly she does it is incredibly difficult. She uses her hax quite loosely, in ways that means that deducing its exact limitations are very difficult. As her controlling 60 people to commit suicide makes her hax seem way more wide spread & powerful than it actually is.

Her hax is also pretty hard to counter as Contfronting her alone is impossible as she'll just mind control you into suicide or insanity, this includes if you get other people to confront her then she'll just control them to sabotage you or send them insane.

Consistent perfect crimes:
Ai Leaves zero evidence. Her murder of The president, Fumino, The Detective, ect. All of them, Despite the fact she committed all these murders herself (granted mostly through hax) she leaves zero evidence at the scene that she was even there or that it was even a murder, making them all look like insanity & suicide. The only time she left evidence was when she sent Seizaki the video but that was already at a point where she was completely unreachable from the police.

Difficulty profiling:

Ai seems insane, Not only this but her genuine motivations are also insane and seem unrealistic. While she does ask Seizaki to try and understand her Motivation, he is literally incapable too. Even I (and I've rewatched the series over 6 times in order to make this doc) have no clue of her motivation. I know her goals, they're quite obvious. Get the suicide law to be socially acceptable globally & alter Seizaki's view of good and evil. But why she's so obsessed with good and evil is unknown, it might have to do with the whore of the Babylon motif but that requires a load of Analogical reasoning & religious knowledge to make that connection.

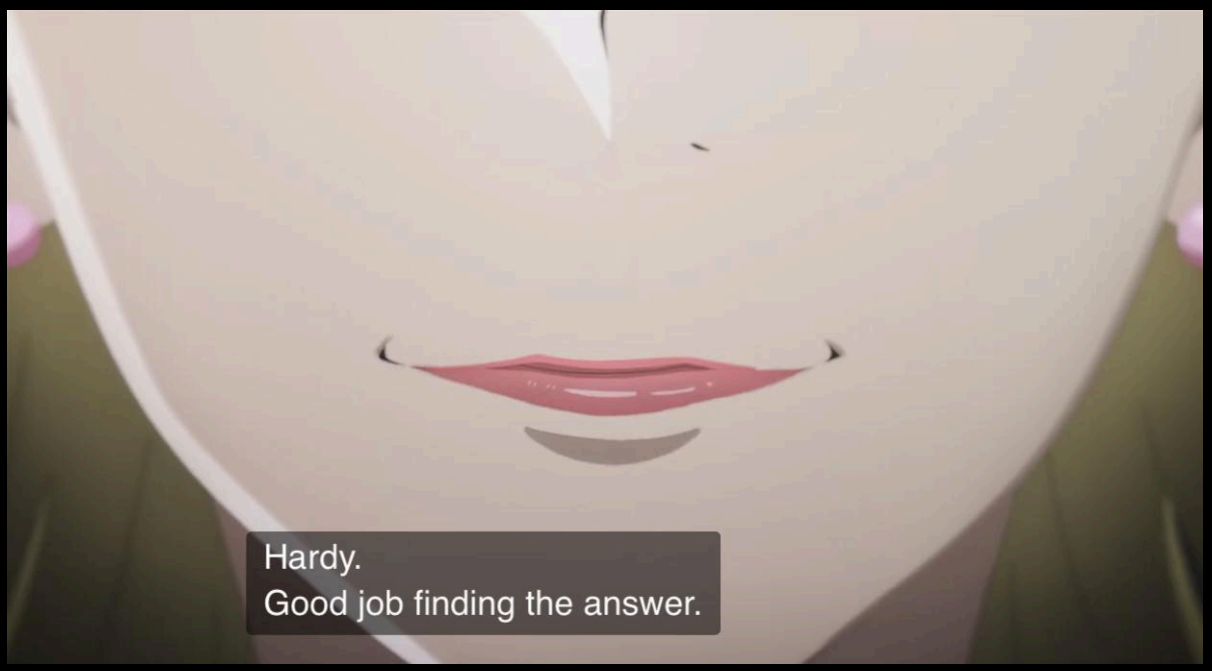

This means profiling her is near impossible as her psychology is completely unknown and even with knowledge of her past. It doesn't help as she's always acted the same way. And her actions seem inhuman in nature.

Unpredictability:
As mentioned in profiling, Ai Magase's actions seem to be inhuman and make no sense from a logical stand point. This means predicting her actions is incredibly difficult as her plan seems very elaborate and over the top, seeming almost inhuman for some people.

Feat Proofs:

A lot of Babylon is unexplained & interpretive so Ill give evidence for specific feats Ai performs.

The International Suicide law debate & Presidnets Morality predictions:
We know Ai predicted a large portion if not the whole debate via her foresight of the president's view regarding the law.
In episode 12 Ai talks to the president saying:

She says this directly after he realised the meaning of good is to continue & the meaning of bad is to end. This seems to be Magase's answer for what good and evil is as she nods when Sezaki says the same thing:

Now Magase says "Good job finding the answer" exactly after the president realises it, this means she was following his train of thought up to this & where he was at by the answer. Now his opinion on this question was heavily influenced by the debate in which he says the meaning of life is at the centre of the meaning of good & evil, but he only reaches this conclusion because someone mentions the survival lottery. This means Magase would've had to predict the entire debate in a fair amount of detail, so she would know they would even begin debating about Good & Evil & then predict how that debate would go, knowing something would bring up the survival lottery & trolley problem & anticipating this would lead to the president's conclusion.

This means she would've had to have understood the reasons for why every other country agreed/disagreed or was neutral on the law so she could foresee how they would debate & how this would lead to their morality debate & how this would lead to the US president's conclusion.

Camera visualisation feats:
To prove this we have to look at Magase's disguises:

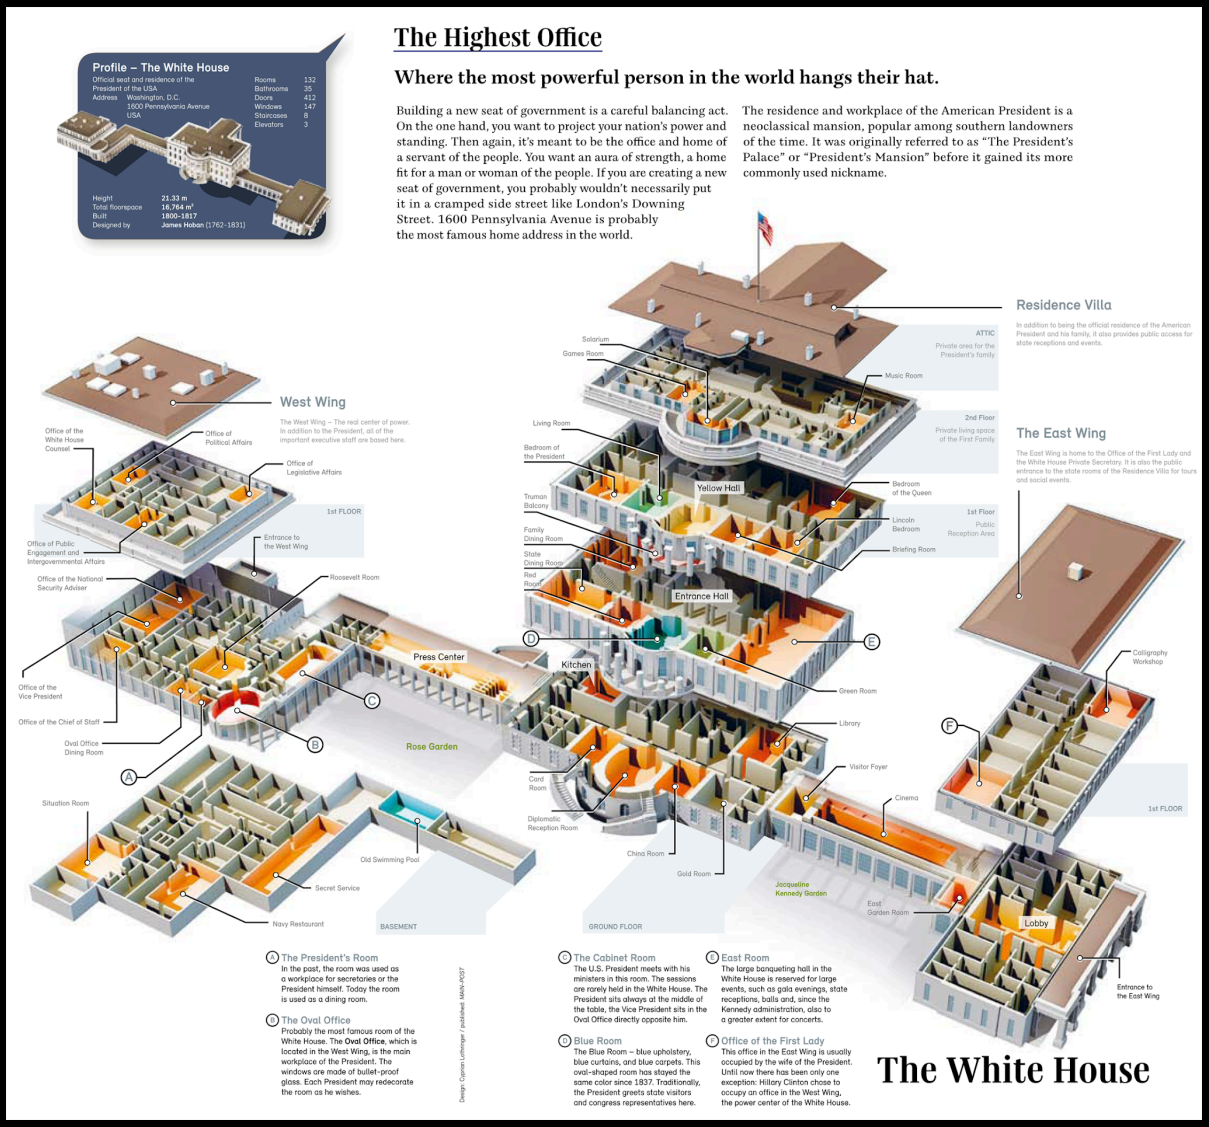

We can see here other than: hair, eye colour, outfits, mannerisms, posture & other changeable characteristics. Magase's face & body is fundamentally the same:

Now at this point in the story everyone was very aware of Magase's abilities & that would mean security would be very high. Plus a quick search can tell you about the white house has facial recognition. This means the cameras and the guards would be looking for a mysterious woman who they'd probably shoot or apprehend on sight.
Meaning she'd have to avoid the sight of all these guards & cameras while she goes from the debate room down to the communications room. Which considering how big the white house is:

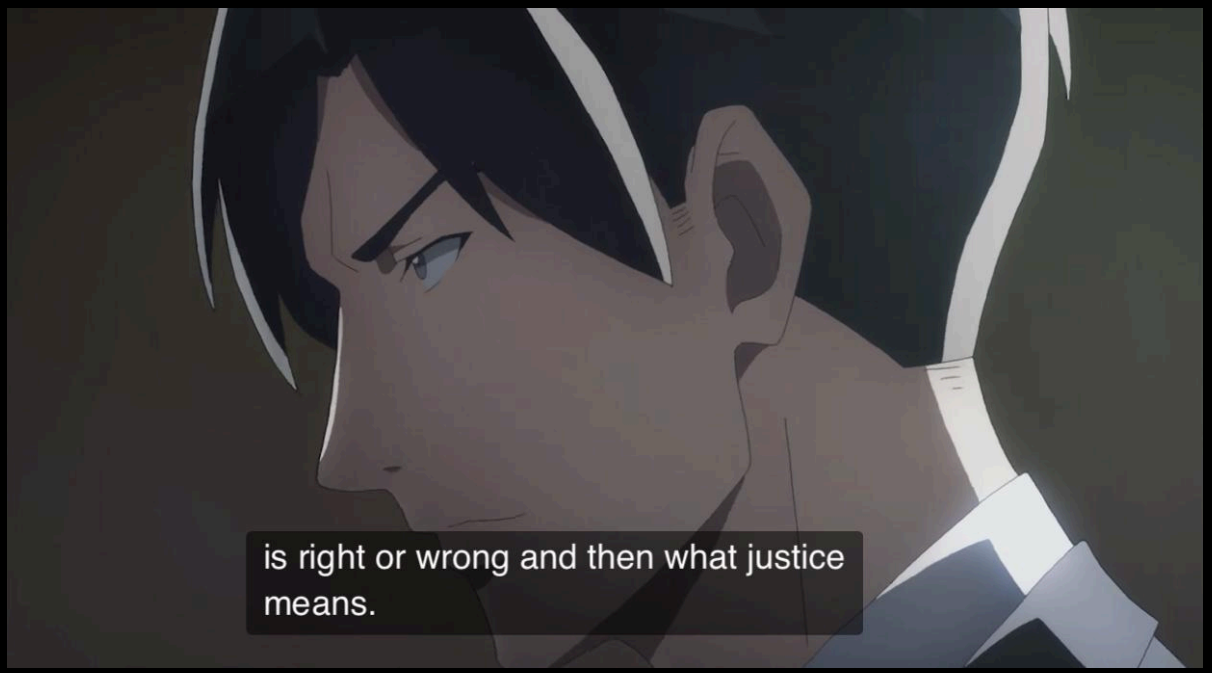

She would have to be decently quick considering the debate & the presidents talk with the suicidal woman both collectively last 20 minutes.

Manipulation of Sezaki:

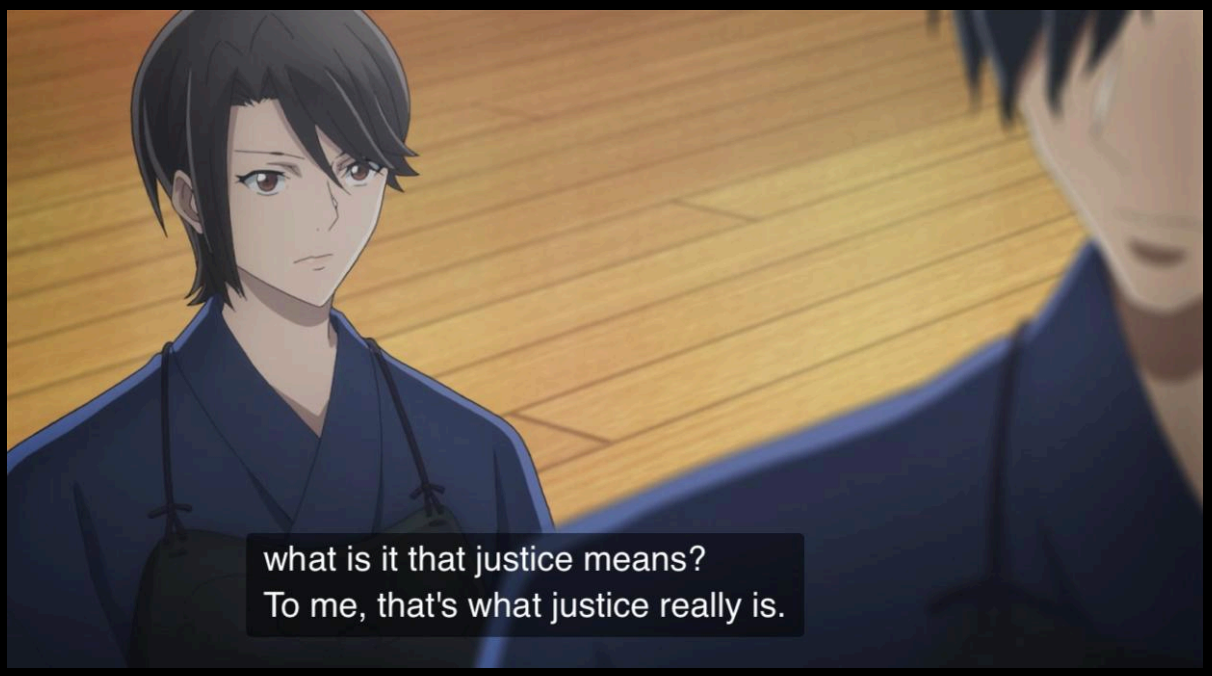

Proving that Magase was manipulating Zen Sezaki without hax is quite easy, we can see that what Ai says to Sezaki directly forms his beliefs. For example:

Tell me what is justice.

Magase says what is justice —-> Sezaki thinks about Justice

Sezaki reaches the conclusion that the meaning of justice is to think about what justice really is.

Another aspect of the manipulation that is unclear is when it started, you may assume Ai started involving Sezaki upon his interrogation of her but I think she had always planned for Sezaki.

In the beginning of the series we can see she makes Inaba before killing himself torturously write the letter F thousands of times, Ai despite how insane she is only does these unnecessary gross & sadistic acts towards Sezaki (shown when she cuts up his friend on camera right in front of him or Sending him the egg with a human eye in it). Since it would make no sense why Ai would do this as it would just get the prosecutor's office involved & make her plan more difficult as she's now being investigated. Meaning she must've only have done it to get Sezaki involved so she can start manipulating him.
