

"REMEBER, NO RUSSIAN"

Welcome to the Vladimir Makarov "No Russian" document:

This is a document that'll cover everything surrounding the controversial mission from Modern Warfare ll, analysing it and explaining every piece of information given to us by the mission from the very start, all the way to the end, although with any outside information that'll or can relate back to the mission, No Russian.

Smaller feats: Makarov had been said to not even flitch at torture, human trafficking, or genocide, showing he had rather great self management at such thoughts. I can really use outside feats since I'm only doing no Russian related stuff only. Knew his way to the escape route (although not that impressive, but the time management he had could be taken into consideration since he had to do his whole operation then get to the escape ambulance before F.S.B could do serious enough closing of the area in order to escape. Which I guess can count for CPI if you wanna look at it that way because he'll have to keep track of the enforcement and time all that stuff.

No Russian:

In the infamous Modern Warfare mission, "No Russian", Alexei Borodin is sent in by General Shepherd, undercover as PFC. Joseph Allen with Vladimir Makarov, leading him to do the mission known as No Russian, which is a terrorist attack on Zakhaev International Airport in Moscow, Russia. In this mission, Makarov would massacre thousands, leaving said thousands of bodies as he is leading his group towards their escape route, but not before leaving his true message, shooting Alexei Borodin a.k.a Joseph Allen and leaving him for death at the crime scene.

Once the Russians found the body and discovered the identity as an American, through security footage, person identification to the CIA; along with the purposeful use of American weapons, "No Russian" and the deceptive use of the CIA agent, they'll not want the horrible Massacre upon their nation go unanswered, wanting blood for the victimising the see themselves go through, along with the rest of the world media.

makarov likely concluded his safety of killing Alexi Borodin without any leaks for that said inside of the mole, all sustainable credibility about Makarov true operation dying with the death of their only source, Allen, although bullet casing did give only them a lead, no outside media sources, if I'm correct. What about Makarov himself? He was seen on camera and he's obviously a known terrorist! Not exactly. The dialogue said about Makarov at the start of the mission was this:

"This man Makarov is fighting his own war and he has no rules. No boundaries. He doesn't flinch at torture, human trafficking, or genocide. He's not loyal to a flag or country or any set of ideals. He trades blood for money" the lines I highlighted are important for the reputation Vladimir Makarov has, and why the likely conclusion was that this terrorist attack was sponsored by the American government which gave every right to Russia to start a war. You can even find newspapers in Makarov's safehouse that say Makarov was recognised as one of the attackers, which tells us that the CIA involvement was a much bigger deal to them.

Well what about eliminating all ideas of erasing Russian identity to the attack? Doesn't change anything, only Makarov would generally get pinpointed but as I'd already explained, that's not sustainable enough to persuade anything. So the others acting American for the framing is all they needed. But there's layers, this is meant to trick the first layer, so mostly just the public eye. We got the second layer, which is the government officials.

They'll surely break through the deception and notice the two dead Russian terrorists and that'll break it all down? Well, an operation on this calibration is gonna have more thought behind it! Makarov likely saw this as a possibility to happen in a high tense situation like this, which is why it's important to mention that Makarov is shown to have men in the government, so it is likely he had men in the airport or investigations to hide this info from the public and those he wasn't aligned with. Proof of this is that MW3 established that Yuri tipped the police off for this mission, and why the airport wasn't evacuated was because of men in the government that Makarov had. And the bodies lack of care and worry from Makarov was because of this fact, Makarov knew their death would not temper with the operation due to inside control, which is why he said "leave them".

Another thing to take into consideration is that the Russian government are itching for an invasion. In fact, look back at the early missions and you come to realize the invasion was already in the works, they just needed an excuse to "spark" the conflict, which Makarov abused as well with his "no Russian" scheme. By taking into account the actual Russian Government's need for invasion, his inside man in the same government that'll cover for him, and the information leakage that was controlled to come out for both the Russian government and public media, we get this. There's also the idea that the US government would have notified the Russian government about Joseph Allen being undercover, but I'll counter by saying it's US doesn't notify about cia level operations in other countries, as they often are illegal or that Shepherd didn't want this out due to his own thing he had going on during this all because he wanted to happen as well.

Now, how did Makarov know Joseph Allen was an undercover American spy? The most likely explanation I can give is behaviour. If you want to take in count the two behaviour that you can take during no Russian, which are merciful (Not killing anyone during the mission since you're allowed to not do such a thing in this mission) or following the order of Makarov, it very much can lead to Makarov suspecting Allen as an American, which is obviously very important to the scheme of no Russian. The most important out of the two behavioural paths that we can take for how Makarov likely knew Allen was a spy is the merciful path. Why would Makarov just let us breezily not kill for his operation if it's not for anything? It's likely that Makarov took notice of this behaviour from Allen from previous tests on other operations, strange for a so called killer working with terrorists, while also noticing inconsistencies with backgrounds. With this, he'll deduce Allen to a spy, one trying to get serious dirt on him and get rid of him, which could also lead to him figuring out that this a inside mole that needing to get the evidences on him, so getting rid of Allen during no Russian got rid of the Americans information on him and framed them.

For the other behaviour of Allen, Allen following Makarov Orders may not be suspect until you add it upon the alignment of the first behaviour he showcased, then it becomes clear that Allen is trying to gain his trust. For how Makarov could have figured out he was American? Well Makarov is a man with great influence, what's to say he didn't get anyone to track his background to the CIA, or even have men in the CIA. For how number two can work, well it can simply be explained by General Shepherd likely wanting that. End results: Makarov, by the insiders he'll have, covers any Russians traces, and pushes all the evidence onto America, which breaks through the Russian Government's thirst for invasion to happen and not have any mercy on America, leading to World War 3.

Next section: Newspapers - the newspapers are the information shown to us in a fast manner at the start of the mission which talks about Makarov. It'll first present what the newspaper says then it'll be analysed. If you don't wanna read what it's says, then you can skip over it and get into the analysis.

So I'll analyse them and send them here to you personally:

"If Makarov has managed to secure nuclear grade weapons then the means of delivering them to any number of capitals within the west via ground based launchers could be the next step. U.S. missile defense systems deployed in Germany, Poland and the Czech Republic are said to be in a high state of readiness. Units of the NATO rapid deployment forces have been pulled out of the line in Afghanistan and moved to bases in Germany and Turkey where they are said to be "refitting" although insiders told this paper that stealth insertion techniques such as HALO parachute jumps and low-flying helicopter maneuvers were being gone through "day and night". Any insertion of Western troops onto Russian soil is likely to lead to further tensions if not playing directly into Makarov's hands as it may well be the final straw for elements of the Russian military."

If I'm reading this correctly, the idea of Makarov having nuclear weapons and the next step with ground based launchers is building great concretes for the U.S, NATO, etc are building tensions among countries and Russia due to Makarov. This also very much tells that the Russian military are pushing onto their final straws, which give more proof about the Russian Government being thirsty for invasion and are waiting for something to happen so they can push onto it.

"Makarov has been dismissed in some quarters as no more than a "sophisticated hard man", but his latest spate of attacks has called this into attention. As one European Defense solace put it last night, "We have underestimated this man and what is driving him, we can no longer see him as a criminal and must now take him as seriously as we take Al Queda in Afghanistan and Iraq."

This was before the previous text, but this tells us the influence and threat level Makarov is building up for the government, which plays into the fact that his countless terrorist attacks inside Russia and all around Europe are roping America down after the No Russian operation due to his high media coverage of behaviour being one seen by the public and Russian Government. Basically, Makarov played into his reputation to further dismantle America, abusing the Russian Government's thirst for invasion and all that for the no Russian operation. Proof for the whole fear stuff in Russia will be down below from one of the newspapers shown at the start of the mission:

"Last night, diplomats from across the European Union (EU) expressed concern about growing instability in the Russian Foundation. The challenge posed to the government of President Kroputkin by Terrorist Leader Makarov has led to NATO troops being placed upon a high state of alert. The campaign of terror waged by Makarov and his private militia has ratcheted up in recent weeks with wave after wave of bombing against strategic targets within Russia, initial attacks by Makarov have been away from the capital, Moscow, but as they happen in and around the political and administrative hub of the Russian Federation, some political and defense analysis in the U.S. and Europe are warning that this has the potential to develop into a full blown civil war with serious Geo-political implications. A meeting of the E.U. Council of Foreign Ministers has been called for next week at which the destabilization of the Russian Federation and the threat that Makarov poses will be top of the agenda. Reports yesterday put the toll of victims at around four hundred from bomb attacks on key installations in and around Moscow. In one incident a Russian Army munitions depot was raided by heavily armed men wearing army fatigues, heightening fears further that Makarov may now be in possession of biological or chemical weapons."

Now that we have established the influence and reputation of Makarov and how it'll tie back to the "No Russian" Operation that Makarov crafted up, we'll move over to this next bit here: " Relations between the U.S. and Russia have been strained since the U.S.-backed Loyalist regime fell in August to the Ultranationalists in the Russian Civil War." This text here is very potent to no Russian and why Makarov push onto it, because he knew about the relations between the U.S and Russia were strained, so something like the terrorist attack upon the Moscow Airport, by Americans, working with Vladimir Makarov, is definitely gonna break war out for them, and Makarov knew this very much. End of the document for now, still might be WIP, but right now, it's still understandable and structured.
