Final part of Emma Elliot Wilson's doc.

During the events of the great special exam, both Emma and Amélia engaged in a long battle of wits, one of the consequences for the loser of these battles was a execution, when the loser of the game died inside the virtual reality machine, they feel the same amount of pain a normal person would feel from the way they died, for example during the great special event, for example Emma's body was devoured by piranhas and she felt the same amount of pain if her body was really being devoured by piranhas, after the execution the loser was revived to continue the game, the great special event was composed of 3 games were this rule of same amount of pain worked and the total amount of deaths being 4, Amélia was executed not 1, not 2 but 3 times and Emma was executed only 1 time, in the first time Amélia was killed by hundreds of bullets hitting her body at almost the same time, in her second death, she was hanged and in her third death she was burned to death like a witch, in her first death she returned back to life and was just scared and breathing intensely, in her second death she was capable of maintaining her composure and in her third death she didn't showed any sign of fear or pain differently from Emma who died 1 time and also returned back to life in the virtual reality and she was just briefing intensely, Emma's death was being devoured by Piranhas even after this she still kept her sanity and wanted to continue the exam knowing that if she failed she would die again, In fact, after being devoured by the piranhas, Emma continued to act like she was completely fine, but her mind was hardly affected by such a thing and she wasn't certain if she would be capable of keeping her mind sound after suffering such an insane amount of pain again, her acting skills after dying were so impressive that Amélia was completely incapable of seeing through her and completely believed on Emma's act of not having been affected by her death in the virtual reality. Even after suffering such an insane amount of pain, she still wished to continue the game in order to prove to be better than her sister, she wanted to continue the great special event despite being uncertain if she was going to keep her sanity after a second death.

In the hospital where her father, who had been poisoned and was being treated, Emma, who went to visit him, watched as his life slowly faded away. She watched him talking but felt nothing, until he touched her head and Emma felt a sensation she had not felt in a long time.

Familiarity, the hand of the man she had never considered a father, was as warm as her real father's hand when she was still a baby. Emma gave up holding back her emotions and just let them flow, she cried and cried, but she could not understand why, Henry's life did not matter at all to her, in her eyes his life was nothing more than a mere insignificant number, at least that was what she believed, but when she saw that scene she began to have doubts if that was really true. Emma wondered if all this time she had been lying to herself, saying that she did not care about anyone and that she only saw people as tools, for her her emotions only existed to manipulate others and use them coldly as she always did, but at that moment Emma could no longer stop her tears. not because she wasn't able to do it but because she didn't want to, the last time she cried genuinely without being to manipulate and use people was when her parents were still alive, some boys had bullied her because of her good-natured personality but her mother and father quickly went to comfort her, Emma tried her best to hold back her tears but in the end she realized that it was all useless and cried hugging her parents and her sister Amelia who had just arrived at the place after hearing Emma crying, when she realized Emma was already outside the room where her father was, she hears a timid voice calling her Emma Klavier Mikhaelinovich her real name (the name she had before being adopted by Henry) and she looks in the direction of the voice, Emma then sees herself only with red, triquetra-shaped pupils. It is then revealed that Emma suffers from a severe personality disorder and every time Emma did cruel, manipulative or inhumane things to other people, like when she killed her uncle, it was all the work of Emma's second personality (to tell the truth, calling the violent and manipulative personality a second personality is incorrect. In fact, that was Emma's real personality before the accident that happened to her parents. She was someone mean, selfish and manipulative. The straight-laced personality that we follow throughout this doc is merely a reflection of who the real Emma wanted to be. She wanted to be a friendly and kind person. However, because she was an avatar of the goddess of death, she could never change who she really was. Emma then caused the accident that killed her parents and used it as a trigger to cause a radical change in her personality. In Emma's post-trigger memories, she felt nothing when she saw her father's dead bodies. However, seconds before the trigger occurred, she felt a strong emotional tightness, even though that situation was caused by Emma. She didn't like killing at all, however, thanks to her second personality, she wasn't able to avoid committing such terrible crimes. Emma always ran away from the problems caused by her second personality, but this time it would be different. Emma would show her father that she had grown mentally. Emma thought, "Why do we humans exist? What is the reason for our existence?... I can't say, but honestly, I don't give a damn about any of that. I'll make my own reason to continue living using my own effort... but... am I really capable of such a thing?" After reflecting for a while, she decided that she would make his dreams come true, in her own way. Emma would prove to him that she had matured. She wanted to know if the relationship between her and her adoptive father, all the 8 years she spent by his side and all the moments of happiness they had, was all real or merely a beautiful illusion? Emma looks bravely at her second personality who was laughing at how miserable she seemed to be, Emma then extends her hand to her second personality and asks "Amelia, if you stop to think about it she always abused me... no, she always abused us, you and I were mere toys for her, but knowing you, I know you're not happy about it at all, hey, how about a proposal, how about you and me together how about we kick that bitch's ass together?", the second Emma’s personality hears this and she gets uneasy for a moment but quickly grabs Emma's hand and agrees to help her, she recognizes that she could not defeat Amelia by being completely good neither being completely evil, she needs to become the perfect balance between the two and so she decides to abandon her previous ideology that the only lives that mattered were those of those who had talent and that the rest were nothing more than mere numbers, she embraces a new way of seeing the world, "all people's life's matter, regardless of talent or special characteristics, denying this would be hypocrisy, after all, even if it's only a little, I'm also a human being", after having reflected on all this Emma goes back to her mansion and confronts Amélia being expelled in the process.

Emma walks back to her house on a dark and silent night, but while on her way back home she is caught off guard by a hand covering her mouth with a cloth filled with sleeping pills, Emma tries to resist but ends up falling asleep. After sleeping a lot, Emma wakes up feeling quite confused and finds herself in a strange place that she has never been before. She hears footsteps of at most 2 people and stays hidden behind the walls. Emma notices a group of 9 people together who were in front of some kind of huge gate. Emma observes those people for a few minutes and quickly gets a complete reading of their emotions and personalities. After thinking for a while, Emma comes to the conclusion that the current situation is safe. Emma then leaves behind the wall and goes further away from the place to try to figure something out on her own. Emma walks through the strange place she was in and is purposefully seen by a member of the group of people who were together. Emma recognized that if she appeared out of nowhere behind the wall and started talking to the group of people in a way that seemed intentional, they might start to suspect that Emma was the person behind that situation. Emma walked away and let herself be seen on purpose by a member of the group to convey the idea that the meeting between the two was pure coincidence and not intentional. This would decrease the chances of them suspecting her and the group. People would come to the conclusion that she was in the same situation as them and that she had no idea what was going on. After finding Emma, the man takes her and introduces her to the group of people. Emma introduces herself as a shy and innocent person. She asks if anyone in the group had any idea what the hell was going on. Everyone says they don't know anything. But thanks to Emma's observation of the personality of that group of people, she realized that there was a girl who was acting differently than Emma had based herself on. Emma deduced that she knew something about the situation but kept quiet. Larry Hamilton, a retired police officer who was acting as the leader of the group, says that they should split into a group of 2 people and investigate the place. Emma goes with Will Graham, the person who "found" Emma and introduced her to the rest of the group. Emma and Will walk around the place looking for something that might be useful. Emma finds a strange tablet on the floor that contained a 2D map of the place and several other things. Emma hurriedly looks through the 60 files on the tablet in 15 seconds. personal information about the players and their family and friends, information about something called the "mystery game", the names and other information about the people who were behind the mystery game, as well as several other pieces of information and quickly memorizes them in her mind before Will arrives at the location. Emma, who had briefly looked at the map, created a 3D copy of it in her mind and created ten markers within the map that was in her mind. These markers represented the location of all the members of the group on the mental map she made. Emma then presents the tablet to Will and says that they should present it to the other members of the group. With this, Emma could gain more trust from the group and improve her relationship with all the members. Emma and Will return to the agreed location so that everyone can gather and present the tablet to the rest of the group, who did not find anything out of the ordinary. With that tablet, the group became more hopeful that there could be some way to escape, Emma took advantage of the fact that the group members were celebrating and approached the girl who she thought knew something. She started the conversation by saying that it was great that they now had hope of escaping from that place. The girl avoided looking directly at Emma, took a deep breath and said that it was indeed great news. Emma felt an opening in the girl's personality that she could explore. Emma said, "Do you know what's even more interesting than the tablet? The fact that you're hiding something from us." The girl was speechless upon hearing this and tried to change the subject. Emma continued, "I feel like you're carrying a huge weight on your shoulders, a huge sense of high responsibility that could never be understood by anyone. Are you protecting us from something?" Or maybe he's protecting someone?" The girl lets out a loud scream to get out of that situation and when asked why she suddenly did it, she says she thought she saw a ghost. Emma and the other members of the group are taken by surprise when they hear a distorted voice coming from a monitor that was attached to the wall. A man wearing a demon mask appeared from the monitor. The man introduces himself as the organizer of the "game of mysteries" and explains that they will take part in an intense game that exists between life and death. Emma and the others desperately ask what he meant by "game that exists between life and death." The man reveals that if they fail the game, they will all die. The man explains what the basis of the game will be. "Everyone present at the location will participate in three competitive games, and the remaining players who survived the three games will be able to leave." The monitor suddenly turns off and the group of people are confused about what was happening, the only people who were not surprised by that were Emma and the suspicious girl, on a second monitor a text appears that explains the basis of the first game.

The first game will be a detective game in which the participants must discover the identity of the killer in less than 30 minutes, the first 8 participants who discover the identity of the killer will be saved from execution and the others will be considered losers.

A video appears on the monitor with a young fisherman, walking through a forest in search of a good lake to fish, until someone attacks him from behind and the scene that appears immediately after is of the fisherman's corpse completely dismembered and dead.

the players are terrified by that, except Emma and once again the suspicious girl who did not waste any reaction, after the video ends the players are taken to a room with 10 chairs and a large table in the center, with 10 very small tablets on top of the table that were in front of each of the chairs, Emma sat in the last chair on the left side, Emma analyzed the tablet and deduced that it served to make the guesses of each participant in the game anonymous and she was right, on each participant's tablet there was a copy of the video and underneath there was an area where the players could place their deductions and reasoning for the discovery of the culprit, The event organizer says that the only rule is that players must not tell other players the identity of the killer, and now the game begins. Emma plays the video again and watches it carefully. Immediately after the video ends, she comes to the conclusion about who the killer was, but waits a few minutes so as not to stand out for being the first to solve the case. After a while, Emma writes her reasoning in the space below the video. Normally fishermen go to places like the beach or the sea to look for fish, however the forest where the fisherman was killed is a forest that actually exists in real life and is called Origin forest, in this specific forest there are no lakes or any source of water, so the fact that the fisherman was there is strange, not only that but also the fact that he didn't even have a fishing rod in his hands, the fisherman had a cell phone with GPS in his hands, so the chances of him knowing that there were no lakes in the place were very high, during the video the fisherman called out Larry's name several times, however this was a trap set by the organizers of the game, after all that forest where the video took place was a closed place and blocked by the police because it had a high concentration of wild bears, in addition at the end of the video where it showed the dismembered body of the fisherman his body had bite marks and claws on his face that almost ended up penetrating the skull, with these observations Emma deduced that the "killer" was in fact a mere bear. Emma lies to everyone saying that the killer's identity was probably "Larry", however this information is quickly contradicted by the suspicious girl who reveals the secrets behind the forest depicted in the video and says that it was a place full of bears, Emma lied about the killer's identity in an attempt to analyze the players' deductive capabilities and identify someone else who is suspicious besides the girl, Emma, manipulating her emotions, makes a surprised face and appears upset at having her deduction disproved. With this performance, she tried to create the idea in the minds of the participants that she was a proud and childish person. After a long time, all the players make their deductions and two people are eliminated from the game by being shot to death by weapons that appear from an opening in the ceiling. Upon witnessing this, Emma is saddened by the death of the two because she considered them to be good people, but she continues her performance, making a tense and frightened expression. Emma looks at her tablet and realizes that the suspicious girl was the first person to discover the identity of the killer. Without giving any time to rest, the game organizers announce that the second game will begin in 5 minutes. During the break, Emma approaches the suspicious girl once again and congratulates her for being the first to solve the detective case, but the girl says nothing and just moves away from Emma, who approaches her and grabs her hair rudely. After that, she brings her face closer to the girl's face and bluffs. saying that she already knew her secrets and says that there was nothing she could hide from her, Emma says this to try to get some reaction from the girl who appears tense and observing this Emma continues to pressure her, but the announcement of the second game plays and the two go to the central hall, there the organizers of the game reveal that the second game will be a debate between the players to discover the truth behind a murder case, the players enter the room where the game will take place and come face to face with a courtroom with a mannequin acting as a judge, another mannequin representing the defendant and several other mannequins representing the jury, the players are randomly separated into two groups, Emma is in the group of people who consider the defendant suspicious and the suspicious girl is in the opposite group, and then the game begins.

The defendant is being accused of murder and the players are given three pieces of evidence that can be used to develop the debate. The defendant gives his testimony saying that he was in a bar on the day of the murder, a testimony that is quickly refuted by Emma who says that the killer was seen at the scene of the murder and there was even a photo of him. The suspicious girl counters by saying that the defendant had a twin brother and there was in fact the possibility that the defendant had been seen in two different places at the same time for this reason. This is immediately refuted by Emma who asks why the twin brother was not present at the scene. According to the game organizers, "the players have in their hands all the necessary tools to solve the case." If the twin brother was not there, it means that he had no involvement in the case and the suspicious girl gives up trying to refute this argument. Emma presents the evidence that shows an airplane passport with a photo of the defendant, however, his name was different, only the surname was the same. That was the passport of the defendant's twin brother who traveled to Japan on the day of the murder. This information was refuted by the suspicious girl who says that the evidence could having been forged, information that Emma refutes by saying that there was no reason for the event organizers to forge evidence like that, Emma then presents a paper from the bar where the defendant had been that was stained with blood and the suspicious girl is unable to refute this evidence, thus making clear the victory of Emma's group.

After that, Emma says that she wasn't done with all that yet and shows the game participants a tablet. That tablet wasn't Emma's, but the suspicious girl's tablet that Emma took while talking to her before the game started. Emma tells everyone that the suspicious girl was the Mastermind behind that game and reveals to the participants a distorted version of her observations of the girl's behavior to give the idea that she was the Mastermind. Emma knew that the girl was suspicious and that she was hiding something, but she couldn't say with 100% certainty that the girl was the Mastermind and so she told a distorted version of her various observations to the participants in a way that really made it seem like the girl was in fact the Mastermind. Emma then pressures the girl to turn on the tablet so that everyone can see what's on it. The girl is very hesitant to do so and begins to despair. Emma, realizing that the girl was already completely hopeless, reveals a second choice to her, saying that if she (the girl) granted the participants something useful, Maybe Emma agrees with leaving whatever she has on the tablet a secret, the desperate girl then reveals the identity of the mastermind behind the game who was actually the leader of the group, she had nothing left to lose, after all, according to the rules of the game

she would die there, Emma is then surrounded by a white light and finds herself inside a virtual reality capsule, in fact all of that was an experiment that Emma had done in collaboration with the government to test an improved version of the virtual reality machine that was used at the Bright Future school.

Emma sent false information about Red9 and caused more than half of the 5,000 gangs completely dominated by them to face each other and kill at least 13,000 Gangsters, the false information was that Red9 was just using them, to cause a lot of damage and that they would be discarded soon after, that was Amelia's plan, but it wasn't what the Red9 as a whole planned to do to them, they seriously planned to save the Gangsters too, after all the vast majority of members would try to save them for having cooperated with their plans to kill the sinners of the world and show their appreciation to the goddess of death so that they would be saved from the false imminent destruction that would be caused by the Creator, the false information divided the gangs into 2 parts, those who believed in the false information and those who decided to remain faithful and loyal to Red9 and due to the conflict of ideas and interests the members of the group that was loyal to Red9 faced the other group for considering them as being sinners, traitors and not worthy of the salvation of the goddess of death, in the end the imbeciles only managed to facilitate Emma's work who used their faith in the salvation of the goddess of death and their ideology against them destroying and collapsing more than half of their total force and facilitating her objective of arresting and executing all the members of Red9 of which her sister was a part.

The false rumors:

After some time, Emma decided to spread rumors that Amelia would be the avatar of the goddess of death, the reason for this being because Emma planned on framing Amélia as the leader of Red9 and Avatar Goddess of death, the fact that she was famous would make the rumors spread quickly and so it happened, the rumors were so out of control that Amelia was interviewed in person by reporters and stated that the rumors were lies and that there was no evidence that pointed to her being the avatar of the goddess of death and asked if being intelligent had become a crime, the amount of people who believed the rumors decreased drastically after this statement of hers, but there were still some people who suspected her because they found it strange that there was no evidence that pointed to her, this was very convenient to say the least, but quickly the rumors stopped almost completely, but this event lit the first flame of suspicion about Amelia Elliott Wilson.

(Definitely her best planning feat)

The time of revelation (The end of Amelia Watson Aurora):

While walking in the city, Emma and her daughter, Marie, passed alongside Louis, the person that Amélia is disguised as, upon crossing paths with Louis, Emma felt a strange sense of familiarity, so she decided to go to the hospital where she worked to find out information about Louis. Emma discovered that after the end of Red9 her performance increased significantly and questioned several surgeons there, including a group of surgeons who were friends of hers, they said that Louis' performance when she first joined the hospital was not very impressive and to avoid her being fired they lied to the boss and the other surgeons, they admitted that Louis' sudden change was quite strange, but they thought it was something that would happen sooner or later. After hearing this, Emma goes to the hospital where Amelia works once again after a whole day has passed, but this time, she was wearing a hood and hacked the hospital's systems by shutting down all the electronic devices and causing a blackout, she took one of the scalpels that Amelia used during a surgery without the people nearby seeing, after that she went to the employee's room so that she would be seen by an employee on site and like any other normal employee would do he went towards the employee's room to stop her, after all Emma let him see her face on purpose, after being sure that the employee entered the room and closed the door she quickly knocked him out and trapped him there, Amelia used a line mechanism and tied it to the employee's foot and when he woke up and tried to get up the mechanism would be activated and would turn on a bell sound that would be heard throughout the entire hospital, after Amelia heard the bell she would go into a state of madness because of her trauma and would lose the ability to reason properly and would go towards the source of the noise to stop it, however Emma purposely made it so that in addition to the line system causing the bell noise it would also knock over a lighter that would burn the staff room completely including the body of the employee on site, Emma also locked the door and replaced all the fire extinguishers in the place with small liquid extinguishers filled with poison that evaporate in contact with fire and thus become poisonous gases that would kill anyone who approached, Emma hated Amelia from the bottom of her heart and would sacrifice anything to end her, even if Emma had to go to hell to kill her, Emma predicted that before throwing the liquid extinguishers that the bell she placed in the place would have melted and that Amelia would be able to think straight again, after seeing the fire and noticing that there was something strange With the fire extinguishers, Amelia would quickly flee the scene while the other surgeons would stay there and use the fire extinguishers filled with poison to put out the fire and throw them into the fire site but they were all killed by the gaseous poison, Emma seeing everything that was happening on her TV through a news channel cries shyly for the many lives lost and prays that they will be eternally happy in heaven, Amelia was the only survivor, she was then taken to the police station and testified about what happened, the police after hearing that began to suspect her, after all Amelia was the only survivor of that accident and also the security cameras next to the door of the place saw her (or someone who looked like her) entering the hospital with a bottle of poison in her hand before the cameras went blackout, the person the police thought was Amelia was actually Emma and everything so far has gone according to her plan, Emma used the fact that they were both twins and made Amelia look guilty for the crime. She was also wearing gloves at the time of the crime and kept her head down to avoid being seen by other cameras, leaving only her hair and the lower part of her face showing. In addition, Amelia's scalpel was found next to the bottle of poison. To make things even more difficult to prove Amelia's innocence, Emma broke into Louis' house and approached an old painting in her warehouse. The painting in question had the real Louis' fingerprints on it, which were preserved because the place was away from humidity, dust and wind. Emma used a special adhesive tape and took the fingerprints from the painting and placed them on the bottle of poison and the scalpel. After all this, it was more than obvious to the police that Louis (Amelia) was fully involved in the crime and so she was taken to trial. The trial went smoothly until Index and some members of the government invaded the place. One of the agents was a friend of Joseph's. He told everyone there that Amelia was alive and that the person they thought was Louis was actually Amelia Elliot Wilson, the court was obviously confused, the government agent then explained that Amelia was never in a wheelchair and made a summary of the plan that Amelia made to avoid the police (Emma told this agent Amelia's plan and asked him to expose her, giving him instructions on what he should do to convict her), the man then questioned Index about the Mikus since they had a connection to the goddess of death, until Index said exactly what the agent wanted him to say, "the Mikus have the same appearance as the avatar of the goddess of death had at age 6", the agent already knew this information because Emma revealed it to him and questioned Index with the purpose of having him reveal this information in front of everyone in the court, the agent then orders Index to create 2 holograms, one containing Amelia Elliot Wilson at age 6 and the other a Miku, upon looking it immediately became obvious to everyone in the court that Amelia was the avatar of the goddess of death, So Amelia was captured by the government and arrested, an important thing to note is that Amelia (clone) used her powers to confuse the human Amelia and prevent her from countering Emma's plan before it was too late, Amelia has a habit of thinking about all the possible outcomes of a situation and choosing the best way to deal with a situation, in the end everything happened exactly as Emma planned. Emma, knowing exactly what Amelia's true personality and mentality were like, was able to predict her entire contingency plan down to the most minimum details with ease. In addition, everything that happened since the beginning of the false rumors that lit the first flame of doubt about Amelia, humanity's unexpected discovery about the existence of the Mikus and the mysterious case of the medieval-era killer, up until the revelation of Amelia's identity was all part of Emma's plan (the medieval-era killer and the discovery of the Mikus are in the second part of Amelia's document, right in the middle of the doc, when she is already an adult. Amelia's contingency plan is also found at the end of her document). She had already predicted that Amelia would think of a contingency plan and would disguise herself as someone else. She knew that she would get rid of Red9's base and fake her own death. She knew that since Emma was the only one who knew that she was not really a wheelchair user, she would disguise herself as a person who could walk normally. In the end, all of Amelia's actions had already been predicted by Emma, including her plan to contingency, she knew that her sister was pretending to be someone else, but she needed to know who the person Amelia disguised herself as was so she could adapt her plan and think of the best way to deal with the situation, in addition, Emma had placed a voice recorder under Amelia's bed while she was in the hospital because she had already predicted that she would pretend to have become a wheelchair user, Emma also predicted that her sister would take her place by force as heir to the fortune of Henry Elliot Wilson, their father. The medieval era assassin was a person that was indirectly manipulated by Emma to only kill formed students of Starlight Pride Highschool, thus causing tension in Amelia who would act at some point to get rid of him, Emma used Index to lure a Miku out of the Miku kingdom and manipulated the situation so that she would appear in a place that was in the middle of a police patrol, Emma knew the shy personality of the Mikus and predicted that the Miku attracted to the place would flee the exact moment she noticed someone's presence, With the appearance of a Miku in the human world Amelia would feel threatened, since if anyone questioned Index about the Mikus, Amelia would lose the game of the goddess of death for sure and would be arrested, knowing Amelia's personality, Emma predicted that she would think of a contingency plan to deal with the situation and it was at the exact moment that Amelia thought of a contingency plan she had already Having fallen into the trap set by Emma, all of Amelia's actions (excluding the D.A.M.I.A.N experiment) after expelling Emma from the mansion were foreseen by her and everything was prepared to contribute to Emma's plan to cause the defeat of Amelia Elliot Wilson, the leader of Red9. Emma quite literally indirectly manipulated Amélia into making her contingency plan to fake her death in order to make it easier for Emma to expose her as being the leader of Red9 in the future. By making Amélia kill the medieval-era killer, Emma would be capable of making her sister feel threatened which would motivate her into making a contingency plan to fake her death, the appearance of a Miku in the human world which was also orchestrated by Emma would be what would convince Amélia into actually going along with her contingency plan, there was also the fact that Emma had caused some suspicions on the public about Amélia being the avatar of the Goddess of death due to the events of “the false rumors” which were also orchestrated by Emma in order to indirectly manipulate Amélia into putting her contingency plan in action. After figuring out the new identity that Amélia was using after faking her death, Emma would simply have to frame her for a crime in order to bring her to court and orchestrate the entire scenario so that Index also appears in that court. How did she do that you ask? Simple, Emma(who was pretending to be Amélia since Emma wasn't the heir of her father's business at the SGF anymore since her rights as the heir were removed by Amélia) prepared a formal meeting with the US president to discuss some business and during this meeting, she mentioned the possibility of using Index as a way to judge if someone is innocent or not in a trial in order to guarantee that innocent people aren't accused unfairly by a crime, something that the government never thought about doing before since they were more worried about using Index for military-related things. With this, Emma managed to indirectly manipulate the president into starting to use Index in trials which had the purpose to guarantee that he would reveal the information about the appearance of the Mikus in the future in order to expose Amélia as the Leader of Red9.

The Big Gambler of Tokyo:

Emma travels to Japan after hearing from her partners who work in the United States government about a terrorist organization that was affiliated with Red9, Emma received information from her partners that they had already discovered the identity of one of the people who was a member of this organization, the man was a very famous politician and gambler in Tokyo, being a person with a lot of authority in the Japanese government, Emma goes to the casino that this man goes to quite often to meet with him and acquire information about the terrorist organization in a cautious manner and prevent him from noticing something strange and causing some kind of thing that could hurt innocent people or warn the members of the organization he is part of about the presence of the American government with the aim of capturing them which would make them cautious, Emma changes her haircut, clothing style and personality completely to prevent her real identity from being noticed, Emma enters the casino and meets the man who was in the middle of an important bet, his name was Jason Hertz, Emma continues walking inside the place and approaches the big bet that was taking place, the bet Jason was making was against one of the richest men in Japan and he was winning easily, Emma watches carefully for some form of cheating and realizes that the cards were very strange, if you distort the vision of your eyes a strange mark of millimeters thick will be slightly visible, Emma deduced that Jason had prepared those cards and that he had placed different marks on each of the cards in the game and that he probably memorized the marks on each of the cards and with that he would be able to figure out which card his opponent had by seeing the mark and using his memory to link that mark to the specific card he made the mark on, Emma waits until the game ends and goes to Jason's table who was gorging himself on food and coffee, Emma sits in his chair and says quietly "It's a beautiful day today, isn't it? "Is it? It's really a shame that cheaters like you exist out there, but I must say using millimeter-thick marks on the cards that could only be seen if the opponent distorted his vision and had great vision, and on top of that memorizing each of the marks and the cards you made them on is quite creative, congratulations!!", the man gets restless and says it was impressive that she had noticed his trick, Emma says "Aren't you scared? I can expose you as a big cheater at any moment", Jason says he doesn't care about that, Jason scratches his head a little and says to Emma "What do you think of a bet? "No cheating this time", Emma makes a shaken expression on her face to make Jason think that she was bad at betting and that accepting that would be bad for her, making him think that she would just leave that place with her tail between her legs, however, going completely against Jason's prediction, Emma accepts the proposal, leaving Jason confused and thoughtful about why she accepted his proposal that way, exactly as Emma planned, Jason who was a professional at Poker keeps his face cold to prevent Emma from possibly reading his facial expression, which works thanks to the fact that Jason is already used to it and is a professional at hiding his emotions, in addition to the fact that thanks to Amelia, Emma could no longer hear her enemy's heartbeat (explanation in the second game of the document "The great special exam" which doesn't exist anymore, but basically Emma and Amélia confronted each other in the middle of an exam in the Bright Future High School and during the exam, Amélia made a sound SOOO loud that it completely eradicated Emma's ability to hear heartbeats and extremely low sounds and almost made her become deaf, her auditive capabilities were extremely nerfed after this and she was never capable of using this ability again), the man remains confident in his abilities as a great gambler and says that he and Emma would play a game called "Tokyo flames of fate" or in Portuguese the flames of Tokyo's destiny, Jason would then begin his explanation of how the game would work, but before he could begin his explanation, Jason asked Emma if she had 4 1-yen coins, to which she said yes and gave them all to Jason. He then began his explanation of the game.

- Jason would call one of the employees at the location and that employee would have the duty to toss the coin in the air and Emma would have to guess which side the coin was facing, whether it was the young tree or the number "1".

- The employee would not toss just one coin, but 4 coins in the air at the same time and would catch all the coins while they were still in the air and cover them with both hands, preventing anyone from seeing them.

- The other 3 coins that the employee would toss are equal to the specific 1-yen coin that the players are betting on, but only the coin they are betting on counts, so if Emma loses focus and forgets which of the 4 coins was the one they were betting on, she would be 100% sure of her loss.

- The players will do this 5 times and the one who gets the coin right the most times will win the game.

Emma, with a tense expression, says she understands the rules and says she will start by betting 300,000 yen. Emma puts the money on the table to get the attention of the people present. Jason wonders why she did this but thinks she just wants some attention. Emma then says she wants to go first and asks to start the game and so it is done. The employee arrives at the place and takes the coins that Emma gave to Jason. The man stands there watching the coins and throws them into the air without even warning the players and catches them in the air in less than 1 second. The man apologizes saying that it took a little longer than expected to catch the coins in the air, but said that as the game progresses he will end up getting used to the weight of the coins. Jason then looks with a mischievous smile to make Emma tense and says "go ahead, you said you were going first, right? So go ahead and choose which way the coin was facing," Emma makes a tense expression and misses on purpose to reinforce Jason's initial idea that Emma was very bad at gambling, Jason starts to laugh shyly thinking to himself "I knew it!! This girl is a complete idiot, she must have accepted my proposal because she is extremely self-confident, that little speech before about cheaters... don't tell me that this brat thought she could beat me just because she was on the side of good!! What a big idiot, hahaha!!!", Jason who had a face of someone who was holding back laughter tells Emma that she had bet all of her 300 thousand yen and that she ended up losing everything and that now she could not continue playing because she had no more money, Emma looks at Jason with a mischievous smile and says "huh? Sorry, maybe my memory is failing me, but I don't remember saying I only had 300,000 yen," Emma takes a dark bag and places it on the table. In the bag there was a total of 150 million yen. When Jason looked at that bag, he started to sweat, after all, that was the money bag from his car. Jason tries to ask Emma why she had that, but quickly stops talking in the middle of her question. That money was all stolen. That was some of the money that Jason's organization had stolen from the most important bank in Japan. If Jason revealed that he knew about that bag, Emma could easily end up in jail. If Jason revealed that the bag full of money was his, he would end up being arrested. Realizing this, he remains silent to see what Emma plans to do. Emma then calls the manager of the place and says, "Hey, manager. Let's do it like this. I'll give you 2 million yen for each of those strawberry candies you were giving away for free. Doesn't sound bad, right?" The man accepts the proposal without thinking twice and hands it over. 30 candies for Emma who rewards him with 60 million yen, Jason is completely speechless with that and begins to scratch his head violently until it starts to bleed, the other people who were in the place seeing what Emma did started a long line to exchange their candies for Emma's 2 million yen, she receives 40 candies without counting those given to her by the manager and gives 80 million yen to the people in the place, Jason seeing his 150 million yen disappearing almost instantly in front of his eyes like that, completely loses his patience and takes a gun from his pocket and points it at Emma who shows no reaction at all, he tells her that that money was his and reveals that he was a member of the secret organization called "Tōkyō unmei no honō", which translated means flames of Tokyo's destiny, Jason was about to shoot Emma but receives a strong shock from the employee who was playing and taking the game coins (who was actually a member of the Japanese government cooperating with Emma) using a gun. Shock Jason is taken to the ground and members of the American government invade the place taking Jason for interrogation, while Emma walks out the front door and comes face to face with 5 of the members of Tōkyō unmei no honō being completely surrounded, Emma reveals to the 5 men that she was responsible for defeating the avatar of the goddess of death and leader of Red9, Amelia Watson Aurora, upon hearing this all the men are distressed and afraid, but continue to approach her, Emma bluffs saying that she had the entire Japanese government under her control and makes something clear to those men, they would end up being killed and they would definitely not run away after all the crimes they committed, Emma asked "what remaining reasons do you have to continue with all this, don't you understand? Amelia is already dead and Red9 is gone, and you know what's funny you'll be next, don't tell me you really believed that shit Index said 13 years ago about the creator destroying the universe? Wake up to life, that was a manipulation by Amelia to found Red9, that was all a lie, think about it, Index worked for the goddess of death and Amelia was her avatar, it is quite logical to think that she could force Index to lie about the destruction caused by the creator, if there are still doubts I can call Index right here and I can confirm for you", Not even Emma could say for sure if Amelia had really forced Index to lie about the creator to facilitate the creation of Red9 since she never questioned Index about it, that was just a risky bet and a bold guess, the members of the organization noticing Emma's confidence decide to flee the place being completely deceived by Emma who goes towards the airport carrying a basket of strawberry candies so she can return home while smiling shyly and saying to herself "Jason... I judged you for being a liar and a con man, however only now do I realize how hypocritical I am, after all, just like everyone else I too... I'm a big liar", Emma had already anticipated all of this with ease, she already fully understood Jason's great treacherous personality and greedy emotions and predicted that he would end up going crazy when he saw his money being thrown away like that and would reveal himself, she also predicted that some members of Tōkyō unmei no honō would try to kill her and thought of the most creative ways to deal with the situation, in addition to all this, the money inside the bag that John thought was his money was actually money offered to Emma by the Japanese government itself, she confiscated the money that was in the bag in John's car and handed it over to the police, she used the empty bag and filled it with the money she received from the Japanese government, Emma would never give stolen money from the bank to the people who were in that place.

The investigation of the French cheater:

Emma received another request from the government to help them get rid of a terrorist criminal who had affiliations with Red9 named Julius. Upon hearing the name “Red9,” Emma immediately accepted the request. Emma had to get rid of a French politician who was the leader of a terrorist group in the old era when Red9 still existed. She watched the man for 2 whole days. Her commitment to capturing the man was so great that she created a casino in France and donated billions of dollars to this casino. Emma did this because she had deduced that the man she was trying to capture was a greedy con artist.

P1: After the dissolution of Red9 and the death of Amelia Elliot Wilson, the world suffered from a huge increase in crime, with several political governments taking power.

C1: One of the countries with the highest rate of corrupt governments after the end of Red9 is France. Given this fact, it is completely reasonable to think that the possibility of Julius also being corrupt is valid.

P2: The officials who worked with Julius to govern Paris, the French state that Julius controlled, were reported several times for money laundering, but when the police searched their homes, they found nothing.

C2: Julius most likely forced his employees to launder money with the promise that they would receive some of the money, but after receiving the money, Julius would anonymously report the employees with falsified evidence and keep all the money for himself.

C3: Such a thing indicates that Julius is truly a corrupt member of the French government and confirms Emma's reasoning in “C1” about him being corrupt.

P3: When casinos were not considered legal in the country, Julius was one of the people who worked hardest to make casinos legal once and for all.

C4: Julius's somewhat annoying insistence on making casinos legal once and for all suggests that he desperately needs this to happen for some reason.

P4: Julius used to go to the most famous casino in the city, called Devil’s Trigger, and he always came back with a lot of money and a smile on his face. However, Julius was never seen playing the casino games and would just watch the players gambling from afar.

P5: On the day that casino was created, the owner and Julius formed a partnership in which he donated 70 billion euros from the government to the casino. In addition, Julius and the casino owner were friends and have been accused of scamming people several times.

C5: Julius and the casino owner are most likely scamming the players who bet their money at the casino. The players bet, lose, and the money they lose is divided between Julius and the casino owner.

P6: Julius started making money from scams when the player Gary started going to the casino. He was an “emigrant” from the United States, and after starting to bet at that casino, Julius started leaving the place with his pockets full of money.

C6: Gary's claim about being an immigrant from the United States is a lie, in fact that guy lived in Germany, his lie and the fact that Julius started leaving the casino full of money after his arrival can only mean that he is working with Julius and the casino owner to gain some kind of advantage.

C7: The possibility that Gary is working with Julius and the casino owner suggests that the money Julius receives every day from the casino is given to him by Gary.

P7: Gary rarely lost bets and when he did, it was only when he bet a small amount of money, between 20 to 100 euros or when he was taking it easy, in addition the bets he lost were against legendary professional gamblers and in these bets he seemed to make bad plays on purpose.

P8: When the stakes were extremely high, Gary never lost. He was considered a betting legend. His skills were so good that he barely paid attention to the game. Considering the fact that he was betting large amounts of money, his action of barely paying attention to the game is strange, as if the mere possibility of him losing was impossible.

C8: Gary most likely uses some kind of cheating to ensure his victory in the betting game. When the bets were with low numbers and against professional players, he lost on purpose so that people would not find out that he was cheating.

P9: When a bet between Gary and a professional gambler occurred in which they bet large amounts of money, the security cameras did not move, pointing directly at the area where the game was taking place. However, when it was a match between two random players, the cameras moved from side to side normally.

C9: Gary is most likely cheating with the help of the cameras and he most likely has some kind of listening device in his ear from which he receives information about his opponent directly from the casino owner to ensure his victory.

FINAL CONCLUSION: Julius and the casino owner are using Gary to scam the players. The cheating method is through a listening device in one of Gary's ears, which is reasonable considering that his hair is quite long and thick. Gary wins the money from his opponents and shares it with the casino owner and Julius most likely so that he can continue to have the reputation of being a legendary gambler. If he started losing out of nowhere, he would definitely lose the title of legendary gambler, but with the help of the casino owner, he would never lose.

With all these observations, Emma plans to expose Julius's scam and arrest him when he is most vulnerable. On the day of Gary's bet, Emma causes a blackout using an E.M.P. bomb that she created with some government materials. Thanks to the E.M.P. bomb, the security cameras and the listening device stopped working. The lights in the place continued to work since they worked independently of the power supply thanks to the technological advances influenced by Index. Realizing that the cameras had stopped working, Gary quickly asked for a break, which was refused. After all, whether or not the security cameras were working had no influence on the bet. Sweating heavily, Gary returned to his chair and after a long game, he lost the game. An extremely furious Julius got up from his chair and yelled at everyone, calling Gary an idiot. In his anger, he ended up revealing the cheating. The furious players advanced on him, but Julius grabbed a gun and pointed it at them. However, before he could shoot, he was restrained by an undercover French government agent. This is how Emma dealt with the situation. easily with Julius and everything went exactly as she planned from the beginning, along with greed comes anger and upon discovering that Julius was greedy, Emma predicted that if he lost a lot of money he would end up getting angry with Gary and revealing the scam to everyone.

(Narrative)
After having prevented wars, terrorist attacks and having reduced the percentage of crimes worldwide (except in countries like North Korea because they are closed countries) by 98%, Emma with the help of Index quickly became the most influential person in the world and was considered to be the queen of the world. Her influence was so great that the United States government followed almost any order as long as it came from her. Her authority had surpassed even that of the President of the United States. Emma became something similar to an empress of the world, having governments of more than 103 entire countries under her almost absolute control. She was the one who gave orders and countermanded, she was the one who led all of humanity to a better future without wars, without crimes and without murders. Emma had become influential throughout the planet and there was hardly anyone who did not know her name, only newborn babies. Emma was worshiped as a goddess of justice and savior even after her death and it was thanks to this extreme fame and popularity that she acquired that her daughter Marie became the most famous singer. of the world in a single day, having more than 2 billion fans around the planet, Emma acquired an insane level of global influence and became practically the supreme ruler of the entire world, there was not a single person who did not like her various actions, appearance, personality, popularity or achievements and great contributions to humanity as a whole, even without ever having her face revealed to the public (her true identity was only revealed 3 years after her death by leaked files from the American and German government), at 33 years of age Emma Elliot Wilson commits suicide by causing a fire in her mansion because she was satisfied with the results of her effort to make the world a better place and also to punish herself for the several deaths she caused, Marie was adopted by one of Emma's friends and has been living under the protection of the American government.

Back from the dead (narrative):

After the discovery of Emma's suicide, the United States government in cooperation with the governments of China, France, England and also Germany decided to start a project to bring her back. Emma was the leader and savior of humanity. Without her, criminals would no longer have to fear so much and wars would happen again. All the governments mentioned created a secret base in the capital of England that had more security than the White House. All people who tried to approach the place were strongly repressed and to some extent threatened with weapons. 5 years after Emma's death, the project of the 5 governments together was finally successful. The government read Emma's brain for several years, inspecting how it works. According to the American president, Emma's brain was like a supercomputer and far surpassed that of any other human being. After reading Emma's brain and with the help of Index, the scientists and programmers working there created an AI mind and connected to Emma's brain, the AI would read and copy Emma's mind and serve as a support for the brain's functioning, by some miracle of fate, Emma's brain was still functional however as expected the body was not responding to the brain's stimuli because the real Emma was still in the "void" (basically Emma's soul no longer exists and she shouldn't be able to return to planet Earth, however with Index's help this became possible), so the 5 governments decided to create a method of inserting Emma's brain into someone else's body, the person chosen was a perfect copy of the body of the daughter of the man who was in charge of ensuring the progression of the project, the girl was 4 years old when she died and her father had artificially made a copy of her dead body just to do experiments on her body and ensure that it was compatible and suitable for Emma's brain, Emma's brain with the AI was implanted inside the copy of her body, several days after the implantation of the brain into the host's body that was not moving or showing signs of life, the receptacle stood up, one of the men who were nearby approached and asked if she was Emma Elliot Wilson, the girl who was lying in a hospital bed said yes and then everyone present at the place jumped for joy and began to celebrate, they performed the great feat of bringing Emma's soul and consciousness straight from the void, without realizing that she was heading towards the exit when she was stopped by one of the men at the place, Emma ordered him to get out of the way, which he refused to do so, The man explained that bringing her back was merely the first step of his plan and that from now on she would live her life in that place until she turned 18, until they finished experimenting and testing her brain's capabilities and she was ready to lead humanity once again to a prosperous future. Emma, with a sarcastic look and laughing at the situation, said that this was a very disrespectful way to treat her leader. Emma was then pulled by the hand to a completely empty room and sat there waiting for something to happen.

New personality and appearance:

Black hair with a short height common for a child her age, her personality is that of a quiet, observant and very thoughtful person. In addition, Emma was wearing completely white clothes as if she were a hospital patient.

(Definitely her best strategy feat)

Escape from the laboratory strategy:

Emma, now 12 years old, was resting in her room after finishing one of the games prepared by the men in white coats to test her mental capabilities when out of nowhere a nationwide blackout occurred, all electronic devices in the entire United States stopped working completely. Emma then realized it was time to continue her strategy in order to escape from there. Emma had ordered Index to cause a nationwide blackout for her plan through the Aurora network and since she was only one rank below the top of the Aurora network hierarchy, he did as ordered. Emma then took advantage of the fact that there was no one there and went towards the steel door that blocked her passage to the outside of the room. Before being escorted back to that room, Emma had placed a piece of wood that she had taken from one of the games prepared by the men in white coats to test her mental capabilities and placed it in the lock on her door. When someone tried to close the door, the piece of wood would prevent the door from being completely locked and would cause the door to still be partially open, no one would notice this unless they went there and investigated (which was unlikely since according to Emma's observations during her 8 years in this place, she noticed a strong feeling coming from the white coat scientists that they were in total control of the situation, the tone of their voices and their ways of acting suggest this, they foolishly believe that escaping from there is impossible for Emma and even if they really went there and investigated the door for some reason, she had prepared an explosive mechanism inside the door, if someone tried to open the door normally the device would explode, so that this mechanism would not be activated it was necessary to hold the door handle, push it upwards while turning it 90 degrees to the left and only then push it, if someone opened the door improperly the explosive would not only kill that person but would also destroy some dangerous pipes in the place, in this laboratory the men in white coats experiment with several different types of drugs, toxins and poisons, these poisons and toxins are sent through the pipes to the other beings who also, like Emma, are being made of experiment in that place, with the destruction of these pipes the toxins would spread and kill everyone(or at least put them in a coma) in the Lab except Emma, after all she was technically already dead, she didn't need to breathe because the AI inside her Brain is capable of creating oxygen and sending it to various parts of the body, that is, she wouldn't be affected by the toxin and poisons since she doesn't need to breathe), the piece of wood on the door made it so the door wouldn't close completely, Emma then uses her physical strength to open the steel door and escape from that room, she walks through the corridors full of people in white coats that passed out, Emma had observed the customs of the men in white coats, all their hobbies, their emotions, their ideologies, their thoughts and their habits, she discovered several things about them but mainly discovered that the men in white coats always drink coffee from the same 3 coffee makers every day exactly at 4:30 pm, last night, Emma had gone to the location of these 3 coffee makers at night when the cameras were disabled thanks to an electronic device that she had made by hand and that because it had the silly appearance of a toy car, the men in lab coats would not suspect that the toy car was actually a device that created an area of effect that worked like an E.M.P., the device was single-use but that was more than enough for her plan, thanks to that device she made all the cameras recordings froze which gave Emma the opportunity to tamper with the coffee makers and add sleeping pills that she found in the infirmary to them which would make the men in white coats sleep when she was in the middle of her escape strategy, the amount of sleeping pills she used would be more than enough to almost completely nullify the effect of the caffeine, Emma had received at the age of 6 a large 2D map from the men in white coats the large map that was in their hands represented that entire underground facility that had a size of 40 KM, Emma just by looking at that map for 2 seconds was able to create in her mind a 3D simulation of that entire facility in her mind and deduced the positions in which the men in white coats would be when she start your strategy using descriptions about their personalities, hobbies and habits that you heard from other men in white coats, the entire laboratory where she was located merely represented a little more than 1% of the entire structure of that place, as Emma already had predicted she was not the only being who suffered continuous experiments there, Emma knowing the entire structure of the place walked towards the surveillance room, in her way she observed one of the men in white coat that was still conscious, Emma notices that he was holding a walkie talkie that was connected to the QG of the organization that was supporting the experiment, she hardly copies the voice of one of the man's in white coat and tell the QG that everything is working and there's nothing wrong happening, Emma then throw the walkie talkie away and continues going to the surveillance room, when she got there she met a guard who was still awake, as Emma had already predicted, that man almost never left the surveillance room so he obviously would not go have some coffee, most likely someone delivers coffee to him every day, Emma then approaches the guard and calls his name, when he looks at her, she mocks his face and begins to tease him, while she was escorted to her room when she came back to life 8 years ago Emma noticed that the other men in white coats avoided talking to that specific guard, Emma saw the men in white coats saying that someone with the same personality as him would hardly have any companion or friend and in addition Emma saw one of the guards taking a calming tea to the surveillance room and the only person who was in that room It was that guard, through all this information she deduced that the man had anger and stress issues, the man completely losing his patience with Emma's provocations begins to chase her, realizing that he took the bait she begins to run down the hallway, the man being bigger and taller was about to reach her, when Emma enters the science experiment room and purposely throws herself on the floor, the man also enters the science room but he then realizes that his torso and legs were full of deep cuts, those were extremely sharp lines that had just cut his body, in addition to having messed with the coffee maker, Emma also prepared sharp wires in an old experiment room that no one, absolutely NO ONE goes to, because there is a strong odor caused by the dead body of one of the people who, like Emma, were experimented on there, she placed the sharp lines on the door and stored in her memory the exact position and the exact angle of them so that when she threw herself on the floor and pretended to have fallen, her body would pass between the lines without touching them and thus she would be intact, unlike the poor soul who was chasing her during this, the man agonizes in pain but after a while he inevitably dies, Emma looks at the dead body of the guard and says "in a normal situation I would feel sorry for you, however after everything you have done to me, I am no longer capable of showing kindness to people like you", Emma leaves the experiment room through another door, turns around and takes the elevator activation key for that facility that was in the guard's possession. Emma then goes to the surveillance room once again and sends all the recordings of the experiments done on her to the guard's cell phone that she stole. Emma then erases the recordings from the security cameras in the system of that facility and to end it all, she opens all the cells of the experiments that were taking place in that place to cause a distraction. She gets on the elevator and goes towards the exit of the place, using a second version of the E.M.P device to disable the cameras on the upper floor of the facility. Emma walks, walks and walks until she comes face to face with two armed men. They then point their guns at her in an attempt to intimidate her. However, if they actually killed her, they would be condemning humanity to eternal misery. After all, it was to get rid of this misery that the 5 countries came together to bring Emma back to life. If she were killed there, those men would be tortured or at least killed instantly for having completely ruined her. Humanity's last hope, after realizing that their plan to intimidate Emma wasn't working, the two armed men go towards Emma and order her to return to her room. Emma, who had her head down all this time, finally looks at the face of those men. On her face were Ryan's eyes of death. She used an eye lens that she had modified in advance to make it look like it was the same eyes as Ryan's. Upon seeing this, the men were scared and paralyzed with fear. They then accidentally drop their weapons. Emma then tells those men that they were wrong all this time and that she was actually the avatar of the goddess of death, or more precisely Doomsday. Emma took advantage of the fact that Amelia never demonstrated her powers even after her identity was discovered. The only evidence that "proved" the argument that she was the goddess of death was the fact that her 6-year-old appearance was the same as Miku’s appearance but Emma being Amélia twin means that the same thing also applies to her(which is true, Emma and Amélia both had the same appearance of a Miku when they were 6-year-old), she then uses the fact that both she and Amelia are twin sisters to bluff and make the two armed men believe that she was really the true avatar of the goddess of death, after all, her appearance and Amelia's were completely identical, Emma raises her right hand and snaps her fingers, at the exact moment she does this the facility where they were begins to shake, upon witnessing this the men begin to believe even more that she is really the avatar of the goddess of death, but in fact this shaking was actually caused by Index, Emma ordered Index to use her powers and cause an earthquake of magnitude 5.7 nothing more, nothing less, it had to be exactly 5.7 magnitude, Emma had ordered through the Aurora network for Index to use her powers and cause an earthquake at exactly 4:30 pm 12 seconds and 987 milliseconds, since the last time Emma saw a clock in that facility was when she was still 4 years old and it was the day she came back to life, Emma had already thought of this strategy and the plan for the end of the world on the same day she came back to life 8 years ago, she had been counting the passage of time using the time on the clock as a basis during all this time at 8 years ago, even while completing her strategy she was counting the passage of time, even when she was sleeping her brain continued to count the passage of time unconsciously, even when she had the 3D map of that facility in her mind and while at the same time completing her strategy she continued counting, Emma was able to count the exact passage of time: days, hours, minutes, seconds and milliseconds, she counted everything perfectly without mistakes. At the exact time Emma gave to Index arrived on the clock, she snapped her fingers, and it was at the exact moment that Index caused the 5.7 magnitude earthquake and also at the exact moment that the bomb she prepared exploded. That place was completely closed, so it was impossible to know what really happened outside. Even if Index made a mistake and missed the correct timing to cause the earthquake, an event that most likely would not occur. After all, unlike Emma and Amelia, he has access to the knowledge of the Aurora network and has an infinite amount of knowledge about all existing things at his disposal that he can use whenever he wants. To ensure that her strategy to escape the place worked without problems, Emma had prepared a small improvised bomb and placed it in the elevator that was still on the upper floor. Luckily, she had gunpowder from the guard's gun and she had also found several chemicals in that laboratory, so she was able to create a powerful bomb capable of making it seem like the entire first floor was shaking. After witnessing this, the two guards run and hurriedly open the exit door of the place and flee desperately into the forest. That place from the inside seemed to be an industrial products store with nothing special, but in fact in the underground area of that place there was a huge facility that carried out cruel and inhuman experiments. However, there was no way for anyone outside to know about this and since they couldn't let anyone find out what was really going on there, the place was actually a store and at the moment it was empty and the products were all thrown on the floor, probably because of the earthquake that Index had caused, Emma goes to the store's cashier area and uses the service monitor to order flour to be delivered to the store, several hours have passed and the truck that exported the flour has arrived, she quickly hides among the boxes of that truck in a way that no one saw her and due to the fact that no one has shown up to pick up the boxes of flour, the truck driver decided to go back, Emma then waits until the truck reaches its destination, during its multi-hour journey, Index teleports in front of her and congratulates her for the fact that her plan worked, not giving a damn about what he said, she gives orders for Index to give his source code to her, Index was reluctant at first because he stated that his source code had at least 5 million seconds and characters of pure information and believed that Emma would not be able to handle it all, however, because she was in a lower position in the Aurora network hierarchy, Index had no choice but to give her source code, she then eats Index's source code which was in the form of a small sphere of pure energy, thus Emma gained access to the first stage of the Aurora network's knowledge storage, with the first stage she was now a complete expert on all forms of humanity's knowledge, she was able to learn the Miku language, she processed all the information in Index's core in 0,07 seconds, in addition Emma could acquire infinite knowledge about the universe and the entire Earth's history, however this would only be possible if she had access to the second stage of the Aurora network's knowledge storage, however having access to the second stage of the Aurora network is not necessary for her plan, enough time passes and the door to the the truck opens, outside there is the owner of the truck and a young woman around 25 years old, Emma pretends to be feeling sick inside the truck and the woman takes her inside her house to treat her exactly as she had predicted, after taking care of her the young woman asks where her family is and she replies that she was abandoned by them, Emma then begins to manipulate her emotions and cry, she said to the adult woman that she didn't want to be alone anymore, upon seeing this the woman decides to adopt Emma exactly as she planned and takes care of her for the rest of her life. At the age of 15 she enters Bright Future High School, the same school she went to in her past life, she studied there and got top marks in all exams and tests, thus earning the title of "elite student", Emma also made friends with all the students at the school on her first day there, praising them, talking about subjects they show interest in, saying that she likes the same things as them even though it's a lie and helping them deal with problems in their lives by giving them all good advice. she used the fact that she was almost always surrounded by several people most of the time, being friends and her "mother" to avoid being taken back by the government, after all if they just showed up there and took her back by force the people near the place would revolt because the government was kidnapping a girl for no apparent reason, there was also the fact that she had access to the Aurora network which would make the government fear her, since with the power of the Aurora network, making an entire government collapse is extremely easy and it would be even easier if she use the influence she had on her past life. All the things that happened since Emma's death until now was part of Emma's plan. From then on, she had already decided that she would continue with her plan when she turned 17, the plan that would finish everything she had started: "The end of the world plan."

The end of the world plan:

2 years have passed and Emma, who now called herself Daisy in her new body, turned 17. Her personality is still exactly the same as when she was still alive and in her original body. She has been using a false persona to blend in with people and make friends easily. Emma studied at the same school as when she was still in her real body. At the Bright Future school event, she entered the chamber and, along with the other students there, connected to the virtual reality machine. When she quickly woke up, Emma found herself unconscious on the floor. She got up and looked around the place where she was. She quickly understood who was inside a strange facility whose location she didn't know, Emma heard noises coming from the other side of the hallway where she was and slowly moved towards it, she leaned against the wall and listened from afar to what people were talking about, after a long time Emma judged that the people who owned the voices were not a threat and revealed herself to them, she then talked to them to ask if they knew anything about what was happening there, they denied it and Emma stated that it was the same with her, after a while a masked person appeared on one of the TVs in the place and stated that they would be forced to complete several puzzles and the puzzles would continue until a single student remained standing, after the puzzle appeared the students must solve it anonymously and individually, if someone tried to tell the other students the answer to the puzzle, it would be executed and if someone answered the puzzle incorrectly it would be executed too, the students would have a time limit of 30 minutes to compose themselves and prepare for the start of the games, Emma after hearing this separated from the other students and went to another room to investigate the facility where they were, A lot of time has passed and the challenge begins with all the students in place, however before the game even starts, Emma kills the man on television and says she is the reincarnation of Amélia Watson Aurora and that from now on she is the one who decides the future of those students, the confused students ask Emma what was happening and she explains to them that that entire world was fake and everything was just a simulation. the place was closed and yet there was oxygen, besides the fact that the students were in that place even though it was completely closed, there was no door, window or gates, and yet they were mysteriously in that place somehow, besides the objects in that place being extremely futuristic but the place itself seemed to have come straight from the 80s, unlike the first time, Emma noticed something else that was also strange in that place, the X-ray exam of the nursing room showed her with her brain normally, however as we already know Emma's brain is being supported and supported by a mini-machine controlled by a special Artificial Intelligence, in a normal X-ray Emma's brain would appear next to the mini-machine, however her brain was appearing normally, the machine Emma was connected to did not have an X-ray function, that is, it was impossible for them to know about her brain, after seeing this Emma analyzed the simulation as a whole and decided to test her theory, she grabbed a nearby gun and shot it without hesitation in her hand, Emma showed no reaction but felt a high amount of pain at the moment she was shot however 1 second after having been shot After receiving the shot in her hand, the pain stopped completely. This was the confirmation that Emma needed to prove her theory. After that, Emma decided to start her final plan to cause the end of the world. However, the current Emma who was in the simulation did not know about the plan, after all, her memories were erased. However, Emma, having knowledge of her own personality, emotions and obviously intelligence, had already predicted that even without her memories she would end up thinking about that same plan. But before starting her plan, Emma needed to fix her hand and for that she decided to produce antibiotics from scratch. There were no antibiotics or other things that she could have used on her wound in the place where she was, so she took several chemicals and through a process of chemical synthesis produced antibiotics to treat her wound. After that, Emma hacked the machine where she and the other students were connected to and completely prevented the machine from being turned off externally, Emma warned her relatives who were watching everything from the real world that if the machine was turned off, the students still inside it would be left in a vegetative state for all eternity, which is a bluff. However, Emma used the admin powers she gained by hacking the machine and made the adults outside and the teenagers who were in the game think she was Amelia reincarnated and promised that she would not fail to exterminate humanity as she had done previously, as a guarantee that no one would get in Emma's way. Using the fact that she was also an avatar of the goddess of death, Emma ordered Index to surround the place with a barrier. The fact that Index was obeying and giving high priority to Emma's orders would basically confirm to all the adults outside that she really was Amelia reincarnated. Emma then forced the students to play her game. Emma decided that if they beat her at rock, paper, scissors they would be free. However, that was a lie. After losing at rock, paper, scissors, Emma laughed and said she was just joking. She then gave the challenge of truth for them, the students should find out who she was, Emma told them that:

- She had already participated in an event like the one that was happening.
- Her hair was a different color than her current hair.
- She also said that she had returned from the dead.
- She was a very famous and influential person in the past

After a long debate and several other hints given by Emma, the young students discovered Emma's identity and she would be punished for having lost the game. After a long process, Emma's punishment caused her inevitable death. Her brain, her body, her soul and her essence, everything had died, but before all that, Emma had collected all the information contained within the AI that supported her brain and also revealed to all the people present at the scene everything that the 5 governments had done to her. They had betrayed her, having revived her from the dead completely against her will. They had treated her rudely. The men in white coats had forced her to follow their commands like a puppet. She had no choice but to do what she was told. After hearing and seeing all the torture that Emma had gone through directly from her point of view, the American government and several others had gone through anarchy and civil war all over the world. Emma was aware of how influential and important she was to all the people in the world. She was seen as a god, if people received out of nowhere the news that their rulers were mistreating their god, they would obviously revolt, with the help of index Emma brought the end of wars, the almost complete end of crime internationally and the absolute peace and prosperity that humanity had never experienced before throughout its history, Emma knew that her 2nd suicide caused by the 5 governments would cause chaos on a global scale, this was Emma's plan to cause the definitive end of human society, accurately predicting the future 13 years of war and natural disasters that were occurring between international governments and the world's population and that resulted in the end of all species of living beings existing on the planet, due to the fact that both avatars of the goddess of death were killed natural disasters occurred all over the planet, Giant tsunamis that easily reached the sky, earthquakes that destroyed entire cities in seconds, all the volcanoes in the world erupted, tornadoes that destroyed everything in their path and lightning everywhere, humanity was only able to survive for 13 years thanks to the technologies created with Index's help, but eventually human society succumbed, Emma watched the chaos from the void(basically nothingness, a place where only beings that doesn't posses a soul and weren't made by the creator can go, beings like the avatars of the goddess) through Index's visor, she then realized that unfortunately everything really did go perfectly according to her plan, a plan that extended for 13 whole years, everything went as planned, Emma decided on her own that the world and humanity as a whole was flawed and hopeless from the beginning, even when she was leading she was able to realize this, no matter how hard she tried everything would go back to the way it was before sooner or later, the idea of a perfect world was impossible from the beginning, but still she wanted to believe that her prediction could be wrong and that humanity could really surprise her, she concluded that she was too naive to have believed that she could change humanity for the better, Emma stopped for a while and asked Index if she could change and alter the universe to make everything better for everyone, Index stated that this was impossible for a being as fragile as her, Emma then said that she had given up on everything and just wanted to be alone and in peace, Emma then noticed someone approaching, the person was the real Amelia, she extended her hand to Emma and asked if she wished to join her, Emma after thinking for a while says that she would join Amelia again if her daughter Marie was saved and so she did, realizing that Amelia fulfilled her part of the deal Emma merges with her and now the real Amelia was fully back. Emma had already predicted that the politicians of the 5 governments would try to resurrect her so that she could continue leading humanity. Emma's escape strategy from the laboratory is also part of the end of the world plan, the end of the world plan and Emma's escape strategy were part of the same Emma's plan that aimed to cause the end of human society, however this does not automatically make the escape strategy from the laboratory a plan, after all the context of the concept of planning suggests that a plan can be formed by one or more strategies, that is, even though it is part of the end of the world plan, Emma's escape strategy continues to be a strategy and not a plan merely because it is part of the end of the world plan.

In her past life (before coming back to life) Emma Elliot Wilson killed herself by causing a fire in her own house, she did this because she had already predicted that the 5 governments would try to revive her, Emma caused a fire in her house with the intention of killing herself, she did this without hesitation, obviously she was scared and didn't want to die (even though she was the avatar of the goddess of death, her deepest emotions were as human as anyone else's) however thanks to her determination and will to start the plan for the end of the world she caused her own death without hesitation and without her face showing any sign of fear. She was slowly killed by the fire that took over her house, the fire that she herself caused. She could have committed suicide with a rope or cut her own neck with a knife. However, Emma wanted her death to look like an accident and she wanted to suffer as much as possible. After all, she caused the death of several innocent people, even she could recognize that her death was deserved. During her death, while the burning fire burned her body, Emma did not scream or ask for anyone's help. Her face was completely emotionless as always. In the end, not even something like death could fix her. Emma was like a broken toy that no longer worked. Her lack of fear, joy, and happiness was not something that could be fixed, regardless of the methods used to do so.

(Narrative)
Index stated that if Emma Elliot Wilson's full potential were fully explored her intelligence, reasoning, thinking and intellect would surpass that of all 3 founders of Red9 (Amelia Elliot Wilson, The Fool and Ryan) and Joseph (Emma's husband as an adult whose intelligence is almost on par with Ryan's) at the same time.

By seeing all this it becomes clear why Emma Elliot Wilson is undoubtedly the smartest character of the verse.
