035 is given The Object Class of Keter

(Overall Outsmarting and Intelligence as Keter Class designates an SCP which is very hard to contain)

SCP-035 can shift from being a Comedy Mask to a Tragedy Mask. In these events, all existing visual records, such as photographs, video footage, even illustrations, of SCP-035 automatically change to reflect its new appearance.

Organisms within 5 to 6 feet of SCP-035, or in visual contact with it, experience a strong urge to put it on. When SCP-035 is placed on the face of an individual, an alternate brain wave pattern from SCP-035 overlaps that of the original host, effectively snuffing it out and causing brain death to the subject. The bodies of "possessed" subjects decay at a highly accelerated rate, eventually becoming little more than mummified corpses. Nevertheless, SCP-035 has demonstrated the ability to remain in cognitive control of a body experiencing severe structural damage, even if the subject's body literally decays to the point where motion is not mechanically possible.

Foundation Researchers have learned various details about other SCP objects and history in general, as SCP-035 claims to have been at many momentous events. SCP-035 displays a highly intelligent and charismatic personality, being both amiable and flattering to all those who speak with it. SCP-035 has scored in the 99th percentile on all intelligence and aptitude tests administered to it, and appears to have a photographic memory.

Foundation psychological analysis has discovered SCP-035 to possess a highly manipulative nature, capable of forcing sudden and profound changes to the interviewer's psychological state. SCP-035 has proven to be highly sadistic, prompting some to commit suicide and transforming others into near-mindless servants with linguistic persuasion alone. SCP-035 has stated that it has intimate knowledge of the workings of the human mind and implied that it could change anyone's views if given enough time.

SCP-035 had been found to be able to possess anything that has a humanoid shape, including mannequins, corpses, and statues. SCP-035 has been able to motivate all into movement, removing the need to expose live subjects to SCP-035. Still, anything it possesses inevitably decays into motionlessness.

SCP-035 had facilitated an escape attempt, convincing several Foundation research staff to aid it in its bid for freedom. Insurrection failed. All staff that had been in contact with SCP-035 have been terminated, and mandatory psychiatric evaluations have been implemented for all personnel coming in contact with SCP-035.

Foundation determined that SCP-035 is capable of telepathy, whether or not it possesses a host, even penetrating to the subconscious of others, and using the knowledge it finds to its advantage.

SCP-035 had expressed an interest in other SCPs, most notably SCP-4715 and SCP-682 to The Foundation . Dr. [redacted] has expressed worry that should SCP-035 bond with either, their regenerative qualities would negate its corruption and give it a permanent host.

After several more escape attempts, and after reviewing SCP-035's incident record,foundation high command has ordered that it be permanently sealed within the facility and prohibited from being allowed any more hosts. Several foundation personnel had protested against this, with some even erupting into violence.

Foundation Personnel within 10 meters of SCP-035 had recently reported feeling unease, stating that they can hear unintelligible whispering. Several others had suffered from severe migraines. 035 had been monitored, but there is no change in its dormant behavior, and no sounds have been recorded.

The motion to reinstate SCP-035's host privileges has been brought up once more, if only on a temporary basis to discover these new changes in the object's behavior which has been denied.

The walls of SCP-035's containment cell have suddenly begun secreting a black substance. Foundation Tests on the substance have revealed it to be human blood, although highly contaminated with several foreign and unknown agents. Substance is corrosive, having a pH of 4.5, and prolonged exposure to the walls has proven to be detrimental to their structural integrity.

More notably, it seems to be forming patterns on the walls. Several segments seem to be paragraphs in various languages, including Italian, Latin, Greek, and Sanskrit. Translation is pending. Other segments appear to be diagrams depicting ritualistic sacrifice and mutilation, often for the arcane benefit of the person committing them. Several foundation staff members have been shocked to note that all of the sacrifices bear an uncanny resemblance to various personnel and their loved ones, often in conflicting positions.

Foundation Researchers while in the room examining these newly formed patterns have complained of hearing loud whispering, and high pitched, unnerving laughter at irregular intervals.

Foundation Personnel in the section working daily near and around SCP-035's containment unit have suffered catastrophic morale damage, with an all time high in suicide rates in staff in that area, whether or not they have ever had contact with SCP-035.

The only change in SCP-035's dormant behavior is regarding its contained glass case. Degradation of the case has increased to a high degree, enough so that the glass will occasionally shatter, causing a wide dispersal of SCP-035's contaminant. This occurs quite often at the most inopportune times, so far resulting in six casualties and three (3) fatalities of both research and cleanup staff.

In light of the mass suicide/homicide of the members of the foundation research team tasked with translating the passages garnered from SCP-035's containment cell, the morale damage in the area, and general loss of staff dealing with SCP-035 to either death or insanity materials like 148 were used by Foundation .

The use of SCP-148 has worked well for Foundation , causing morale and suicide rates to return to near pre-SCP-035 rates.

However, the material appears to facilitate the negativity within the cell, causing a veritable "Greenhouse Effect" inside.Foundation Personnel inside the cell have stated that they feel a heavy sense of dread, fear, anger, and general depression, as well as hearing constant, nearly inaudible whispering upon immediate entry. A prolonged stay causes severe migraines, suicidal tendencies, heavy hemorrhaging of blood vessels around the eyes and inside the mouth and nose, general hostility to others, and for the whispering to increase to almost deafening volumes, intersected by a constant mocking laughter. Exposure of more than three hours inevitably results in the subject falling into a deep psychosis, and attempting to harm either themselves or others. Most spoke in Latin or Greek, despite the fact that several did not previously know how to speak said languages beforehand.(it's planning as 035 had done all this to make The Foundation believe it too troublesome to contain him)

The presence of blood in both word and diagram formations has increased disproportionately, the walls becoming cluttered, and the formations beginning to overlap each other. The substance has proven to be both difficult to clean, and even more corrosive than was originally recorded, with a pH of roughly 2.4. General estimation gives the current walls a life of two months before they will need replacement.

For The Foundation It had become gradually more and more difficult to contain SCP-035, and the debate to reinstate its host privileges has once again come up.

The walls, ceiling and floor of SCP-035's containment cell have now been completely saturated in blood. All foundation personnel entering and guarding the area must wear full Hazmat protection suits. Constant cleaning efforts are being instated.

The magnitude, intensity, and recurrence of the phenomena that occur within SCP-035's containment cell have increased to an alarming degree. The cell door has been known to become locked of its own accord while personnel are inside, and unable to be opened for a period of time. Appendages form out of the larger puddles of blood and often attempt to grab or harm personnel near them. Blurry apparitions have started appearing to staff. Electronic devices no longer work inside the cell, and the light cannot be turned on, though there is no physical reason why it does not work, forcing those entering to use non-electric based light sources.

Foundation Cleaning measures are having no discernible effect on the cell, and the walls are degrading at a very high rate, forcing them to be replaced within a week at best, although the blood makes it nearly impossible to properly achieve this.

SCP-035 may have to be moved to a new cell entirely, with the old one sealed off and disengaged from the rest of the facility.

Analysis

035 had reasoned that he couldn't just manipulate The Foundation to release him or launch an insurrection to be free. So 035 devised a Plan to

- Have The Foundation Change his location while being confident in their ability to contain him

To accomplish this he initially behaved cooperatively despite still being Sadistic and Violent so that The Foundation gives him Host Rights,035 also allowed them to find out things about him like how the decay of host's works,knowledge of several languages and high intelligence to make them think that they know and understand 035. 035 then using the Host and several manipulated people launched an assault to escape,knowing that meagre force couldn't free 035 to manipulate The Foundation into thinking they were tricked once but they thwarted the scheme. 035 also made it known to The Foundation he wanted to meet other SCP's like 682 ,knowing they would reason 682 wouldn't be destroyed thus making them believe they saw through his scheme. 035 then ,falsely, tried to escape several and drove people to insanity to further strengthen the previous deception and manipulate the foundation into taking away host rights and to increase the bluff manipulated people into protesting against it. 035 then performed several actions like creating whispers for all in 10 metres around him,secreting a black substance from the walls with parts having diagrams showing rituals with the guards members and also made people try to have his host privilege reinstated more to manipulate The Foundation into coating the inner and outer walls with 148. This would create a "Greenhouse Effect" of negativity which will cause anyone who entered his cell for a long enough time to become insane. This all made The Foundation think 035 is throwing a temper tantrum and forcing them into taking him to another cell.
