Haxes related to Intelligence :

1- [The Fairy Eyes] are eyes with which fairies can see through lies. These are not Mystic Eyes that humans possess, but are rather a type of vision that fairies are born with that allows them to "alter worlds."

The fairy eyes possessed by high ranking fairies are described as eyes capable of seeing through all lies and projecting the truth. Since good will and ill will are both lumped together by fairies, this is a mostly meaningless supernatural power as far as they are concerned. Still, nothing good will come out from a human that feels perplexed by the differences between good and evil possessing these eyes.

These eyes, which see through all lies and reflect the truth, allow Oberon to clearly see the malice, shortcomings, and nature of intelligent beings.

This Hax alone gives Oberon considerably the strongest EQ in the entire SCD.

Before that, I need to explain the scale of the situation :

What happened to earth?

- After Chaldea successfully saved earth and humanity from the extinction because of Goetia's plan to incarnate all of humanity, a new problem has occurred which turned out that it was supposed to happen before Goetia's plan but was postponed because of Goetia.

[Note I didn't 100% understand it sorry I will just write whatever I understood]

An alien god (Still unknown right now) and its disciples decided to take over earth by flipping the surface of earth (Yes you read it right) putting all of earth into bleachedness while everyone is theoretically dead but alive in the same time, and the alien god planted 7 giants trees called the "trees of emptiness" on the bleached earth so that once one of them reach the mature state it will be offered to it(alien god) so that it can get stronger and rule over the new earth that will come with the mature state of the tree which is called “Lostbelt”.

What is a Lostbelt?

- As opposed to the Proper Human History, the history of "winners" born from correct choices and proper prosperities leading to the "present", the history of "losers" born from the wrong choices and mistaken prosperity is cut off. Considered "unnecessary" and cut off from becoming even parallel worlds, this history which has hit a dead end is known as a Lostbelt (異聞帯ロストベルト, IbuntaiRosutoberuto?, lit. "Belt of Strange Tales"). If one thinks of Human History as one long scroll, the Lostbelts are like another scroll entirely that was discarded once it was clear it was no longer useful. It is unknown how exactly that the timelines selected by the Fantasy Trees managed to exist until the present day, as they would have ceased to have exist entirely within a century of being designated for culling due to Quantum Time-Locks. Despite this, these Lostbelts are being wielded as weapons against the world of Proper History itself in an incident known as the Filtering Outsider Phenomenon (濾過異分子現象, Roka Ibunshi Genshō?, localized as "Felling Theoretical Phenomenon"). Ophelia Phamrsolone proposes the theory that the specific timelines that we see within the Alien God's Lostbelts are actually virtually simulated from their point of culling unto present day using the resources within the Tree; and then iterated without, unto the Tree's environs, the surrounding environment. This is abstractly akin to Emiya Shirou's Projections — rendering into the real world the product of a simulated history, then imposing that simulated history over the Proper Human History in the hopes of replacing it with the Lostbelt's version of history.

The Fantasy Tree then selects a Lostbelt King, a powerful figure who is given the ability to direct the Tree's growth and spread, making the Lostbelt more stable and expanding its scope. The Fantasy Tree also begins gathering energy, which is used to prepare for the descent of the Alien God. The Alien God's true intentions for the Lostbelts as well as the Human Order Revision itself are currently unknown. Destroying the Fantasy Tree sustaining the Lostbelt will allow the culling process to resume, and a Holy Grail formed from the Fantasy Tree's remains can be collected. A Lostbelt without its Fantasy Tree can last no more than a few months (from its inhabitants' perspective- an outside observer will see it vanishing immediately) before the culling process is completed, at which point the Lostbelt and all of its surviving inhabitants will be erased from reality as if they never existed. It is unclear if erasing all the Lostbelts is enough on its own to undo the bleaching of the world, but it is likely to be a necessary step towards doing so.

The events of the Edo Singularity reveals a unique "Subcategory Singularity" (亜種特異点, Ashu Tokuiten ?, localized as "Pseudo-Singularity"), designated the Humanity Destruction Zone, that is able to effect Human History akin to a Lostbelt but while trying to remain a Singularity, when normally Singularities only affect what's within the Singularity's borders. She compares the one in Edo to others such as the Shinjuku Singularity and the Shimosa Singularity as places isolated from standard history.

The Shimosa Singularity is considered Subcategory Parallel World (亜種並行世界, Ashu Heikō Sekai?, localized as "Pseudo Parallel World"), also known as a Micro-Lostbelt (小さな異聞帯, Chiisa-na Ibuntai?), as it is something close to a Parallel World but not quite one. A Lostbelt that was both a part of human history but also not part of it. It is a world observed by the God of a Distant Star and a world resembling a Singularity yet isn’t one. An otherworld (異界, ikai?) rift which exists between dreams and reality, distinct enough that it should be designated for culling but hasn't been. A closed-off subspace not unlike a Reality Marble, a separate timeline, or an alternate world. Due to its isolated nature, the Counter Force is apparently somewhat weaker there, though as it is not within the standard history (but at the same time, not within another universe), the events within should not be able to threatened history. Despite this, with the summoning of Onriedo Castle by Amakusa Shirou's Reality Marble, the events of the world would switch from dream to reality and become quite real. If Amakusa's reality marble was able to fully take root in that world and activate its curse, not only would it destroy that world, but threaten to destroy many other worlds too, including the world of Chaldea.

The Heian-kyō Lostbelt was capable of becoming a Subspecies Lostbelt (亜種の異聞帯, Ashu no Ibuntai?), using a ritual to grow and mature a Fantasy Tree but using the Onriedo Castle summoned in the Shimosa Singularity, a castle from a pruned Lostbelt, as equivalent for a Psuedo-Fantasy Tree; a Subspecies Fantasy Tree (亜種空想樹, Ashu Kūsōju?). This is something that is both a Singularity and a Lostbelt due to being a Lostbelt occurring in 1008 AD, Heian period Kyoto from Proper History. Due to this, the city will become a different world, while at the same time be taking root in Proper History and destroying the future.

Meanwhile, the British Lostbelt reveals that the magical energy of a Lostbelt's Fantasy Tree can be used to turn the Lostbelt into a Singularity - a Fantasy into a Reality - through Rayshifting within the Lostbelt itself, with Morgan Le Fay on Proper Human History and the future of the Lostbelt to the version of her within the Lostbelt's past. Turning a Lostbelt into a Singularity requires the Fantasy Tree to wither and die, as long as the Tree remains, nothing can be changed in a Lostbelt; any element added causes history to adjust in real-time, even if it isn't consistent. Only when the tree disappears can there be an opportunity for a fantasy to become reality if one can sustain the "world" afterwards, which she could sustain through the vast magical energy in her Summoner's Throne from her "existence tax" on the lifeforce of her fairies. If the original distortion of history, the origin point and foundation of the Lostbelt, is corrected - in this case, the original "Holy Sword" not being forged - then the Singularity will be resolved and eventually the Lostbelt's contents will never have existed without its Fantasy Tree to sustain it. Consequently, should this Singularity merge with Proper Human History, then its history would become part of Proper History - in this case, Proper History will lack the Concept of the "Holy Sword", Excalibur.

Turning a Lostbelt into a Singularity changes the history of a Lostbelt and make it "real", a new history capable of comparing to Proper Human History with its "strength", becoming a "Lost World". Because they are as real as inhabitants from Proper History, some Lostbelt inhabitants are able to exit a Lostbelt and can emigrate to Proper History without disappearing. However, in the British Lostbelt's case, as the humans of the Lostbelt are not natural lifeforms and with no reproductive ability, and were created back when the Tree was still alive and history still a fantasy, they remain a fantasy that can only exist in the Lost World. Meanwhile, the fairies are real and can exist in Proper History, as they could be born after the Lostbelt became real. As the time before the Tree died is still considered a "fantasy", it allows for an amount of discrepancy, such as sending a Calamity or a person from Proper History back in time, as no matter how much the Fantasy history changes as a result, the beginning of the "real" history when the Tree dies is set in stone. Once the Tree withers, those time-travelled elements disappear as it contradicts the event of the real history, and inhabitants with memories of those contradictions will revert to the previous version of events without the time-displaced elements. However, if those elements do not make any contradictions in history until they reach the time when they were first sent back in time, they can avoid the paradox and prevent disappearing. Despite this, after history becomes "real", if someone from the Singularity recognises an individual from the Lostbelt as something different to what "real" history says, or an individual from the Lostbelt remembers someone from the Singularity, then the individual from the Lostbelt will become someone who "should not exist" and be erased due to the paradox; memories of that individual will, however, remain.

Following the attack on Chaldea in 2017, the bleaching of the world and the declaration of rebellion against the Proper Human History, with the threat of a regression into the Age of Gods and the recreation of the world, the survivors are forced to use an experimental method of navigating through Imaginary Number Space, through the Lostbelts, in order to resolve the incident.

After all of the Lostbelts have been established, the Crypters seek to expand the "domain" of their own Lostbelts, which will eventually clash with the other Lostbelts. The one that is built by greater Human Foundation will end up overtaking the weaker one and use it as "nutrients". This process will allegedly continue, until only one Lostbelt is remaining.

Koyanskaya describes the Proper Human History as "easy mode" and the Lostbelts as "hard mode", though the veracity of her statement has yet to be fully determined.

Similar to the Human Order Foundation Values associated with the Singularities, the Lostbelts have an associated value known as a Lost Depth (異聞深度, Ibun Shindo?). Lost Depth is a rank to display how much the Human Order in a Lostbelt has deviated from that of the Proper Human History.The trees that I mentioned needed someone to look out for them, therefore with their plant they also come with a whole new foundation of creatures that lives their lives normally just like we do but in their ways, but there is also another reason as to why a new foundation is made there [The alien needs people to rule over, that’s it], but most importantly is that the alien god will take the most mature tree and use its vessel and incarnate and take over earth.

What is so special about Lostbelt 6?

- Here, the tree was consumed by the lostbelt king(Queen) Morgan who rules over all of this Lostbelt with her unrivaled power that is beyond any enemy Chaldea has fought, but more importantly is the fact that the lostbelt kept to continue without the tree meaning it became a literal world within the world that has almost everything needed to live from clan, people, civilization and a huge amount of people that will take place as earth if nothing stops it, but there is no forward way to actually kill Morgan because of how powerful she is therefore Alaya(The will of earth) has sent Oberon to destroy it before it becomes a disaster giving him two things, one is knowledge about the current era, two is fusing him with Vortigern who once were in our history as king Arthur's uncle and also Morgan's uncle which allows him to get more knowledge on them.

Note : Chaldea has only 24 Hours[About 50 days inside the Lostbelt] before earth gets destroyed by Morgan's plan to expand her territory.

Here is a youtube video that also explains what Oberon did in Lostbelt 6

Oberon Vortigern...4D Chess Extraordinaire

Let's Start :

—-

{Lostbelt 6 : Avalon La Fae}

[Section 1]

The moment Chaldea entered the Lostbelt an impact on the light walls of the Lostbelt occurred leaving a sign of an invader has entered the Lostbelt by force, and Oberon immediately know(Or at least guessed) that it was Chaldea who entered the Lostbelt and rushed to their location before Morgan do anything so that he joins them and gets their help in his plans.

Why and how did he know?

- Within this Lostbelt there is a prophecy called “Ainsel’s prophecy” that says a 16 years old girl will come to this world with the great power to stop Morgan’s schemes and free all of Britain, and Oberon knew who is that girl (her name is Altria) but he knew for a fact that she is far weak to achieve such a thing because he himself trained her and watched her grow but there wasn’t a sign of her being able to defeat Morgan, which means she won’t do it alone and there is someone will come to help her in that.

- And there was the information that came from Beryl Gut (The Crypter of the Lostbelt) which spread out quickly about a group of people called Chaldea which he was one of them, who are planning to come to this Lostbelt at some point to destroy it so that they can get back their world.

- And since Chaldea has already destroyed 5 Lostbelts, they are probably strong enough to fight Morgan, which means they will be the ones that will help Altria to achieve the prophecy and Oberon knew that he needs to use them for his plan to kill Morgan and the whole Lostbelt.

- By all this information and the impact, Oberon immediately deduced that it was Chaldea that entered the Lostbelt(Or at least hoped for) and his intuition was right.

[Intuition - Decision Making - PSI - Abductive Reasoning]
—----------

[Section 2]

Oberon knew that Ritsuka was hiding the truth about their actions of coming to this Lostbelt since if she(Altria) knew his true intentions she will probably stop helping them after that and Oberon was right, and moreover he knew that Ritsuka felt guilty of his actions for destroying 5 Lostbelts and its people since that is considered as betrayal, but Oberon successfully confessed Ritsuka that wasn't something he should feel guilt of and something that he should actually be proud of since these actions are done to ensure the safety of the true humanity.

[EU - EF]
—----------

After looking at Ritsuka's and Tristan's combat abilities, Oberon was able to understand the full capabilities of both of them and knew where they shine most in the battlefield and what are their weaknesses that hold them.

[Descriptive Analysis - Intuition]
—----------

Looking at Altria, Oberon knew she was planning to leave the moment they reached Salisbury since she wants to go one her own, but Oberon needed her to stay with Chaldea, therefore he pointed out [without saying anything about her idea of leaving] that in Salisbury humans that is catched without owners are captured as ranch escapees and sent up to New Darlington which means Ritsuka will be enslaved if Ritsuka were to be left without an owner forcing Altria to act as Ritsuka's human owner to make sure of his safety while forcing her to stay with them.

[EP - Mind Reading - EF - Cold Reading - Persuasion - Knowledge Application]

—----------

Oberon seemed to be loved and very popular among a lot of the faeries in the city who were pleased by his revisit which he pointed out that it took him quite some time to reach this.

[Social Integration - Social Cognition - Social Skills - Charisma]
[Section 3]

After getting information from Blanca [His little friend], which told him there was another child of prophecy, Oberon decided to keep this information from Chaldea to avoid complexity but he also realized that this will also be in his advantage as long as the other child of prophecy do something that Altria can't … this will distract Morgan's attention which gives them time that they will use to grow stronger before they go to Norwich while Oberon stays on track with the situation in Norwich.

[Info Gathering - Multitasking - Field Navigation - Info Control - Linear Thinking - Decision Making]
—----------
[Section 4]

Oberon showed a remarkable amount of knowledge about the mystics and the creation of fae and he explained in detail the differences between them here and the legends in our world about fae.

[General Knowledge - Contrasting]
—----------

Just by one meeting with Koyanskaya, Oberon understood her completely saying to Murian that "She is an abomination" (which is correct if you ask me), later it turned out that this was an act from him so that he makes us think that he would never ask for her help which proved wrong later in the story.

[Psychological Profiling - EU - EP - Misdirection]
—----------

[Section 1-9]

From the very beginning, the real reason of our journey to Norwich wasn't to ring the first bell but it was Oberon's plan to prove Altria's capability by defeating the calamity that will fall on Norwich the moment Altria steps foot there which was confirmed by Ainsel's Prediction "On the other hand, it's also plausible that disaster won't befall Norwich until the Child of Prophecy goes there"

So Oberon was leading us and making allies for us from the very beginning so that we are able to enter Norwich ready to fight the calamity and get attention from all the fae clans and be able to ring the bells and declare war on Morgan later.

And he kept that hidden to make sure that Ritsuka's and Altria's resolve remain as strong as possible.

[This was explained in Section 23] Oberon also knew about Mash's location all along, but he wanted to get Muramasa with the army since he knew he was strong and would come in handy.

And everything went successfully and they got the help from multiple clans after they defeated the calamity just like Oberon wanted.

Percival explained that Oberon is the actual founder of the Round Table Army that was made to fight Morgan starting from zero.

From the information that he gathered, Oberon knew that Woodwose(One of the clans leaders) had a thing(Feelings) for Aurora which Oberon decided to use by telling Aurora to have some time with Woodwose to play with his feelings. [Later, it turned out that this is very important for Oberon's plan]

Armies are just one of the tools for fighting a war, Da Vinci.

You see, Woodwose has had kind of a thing for Aurora lately.

So if the woman he wants so much but hasn't given him the time of day suddenly wanted to see him...

- Wow, that's cold, Oberon...

Oberon	Oh, don't worry. Aurora's a lot more...open-minded than you might think. She'll be genuinely happy to show Woodwose some affection.
Oberon	...No, wait. As kind as she is, she might actually make Woodwose fall hard for her.
Oberon	I'd better make her understand being TOO nice to him might lead him on a bit.

[Hot Reading - Long Term Planning - Tactics Management - Abusing Insecurities]

——————————————

[Section 12]

While keeping an eye on the battlefield, Oberon immediately realized that it was too late for Percival's team to kill Spriggan (Leader of Norwich) because of the following reasoning…

Spriggan's demonstrated his neutrality to his citizens, thereby fulfilling his role as their lord.

As a result, the faeries of Norwich still recognize him as their leader.

So they definitely won't be happy if you kill him now that he's shown he's open to peaceful discussion.

And that's not all. While Norwich's artisans may all hate Spriggan...

The other residents who use the artisans' services consider him indispensable.

Remember how I said that Norwich is on the verge of becoming a human city?

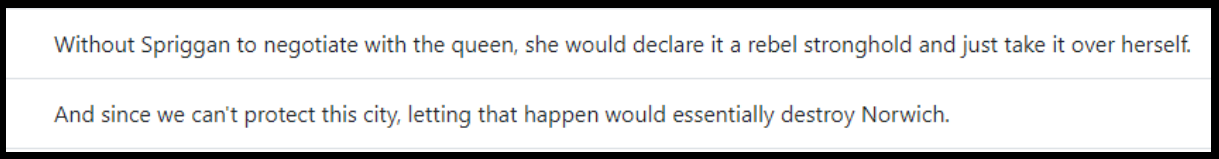

Spriggan's policies are essential for faeries who want to maximize their profits above all else.

That's what makes him so tricky to deal with. Sure, half of Norwich hates him, but the other half supports him.

So you can't just kill him without a very good reason. It would make us public enemies.

And not only that ——

And there Percival understood Oberon's reasoning and said

And with this they successfully avoided a lot of unnecessary complications.

[Trap Evasion - Prediction - Overall Reasoning - Overall Insight]

—----------

[Section 13-14]

[Note : I don't know how Oberon was able to predict that Morgan will attack his forest in this feat maybe it was pure luck]

In Section 14, Habetrot pointed out that the attack on Oberon's forest was not a random act that was not unforeseeable act from Morgan and she pointed out that it was actually a trap from Oberon because Oberon predicted that she would send Tam Lin Gawain which Oberon decided to use this small opportunity to increase the Round Table Army by showing them hope in winning against Morgan by defeating Gawain(Barghest) which was successful just exactly like he wanted.

One flaw was the fact that it was not a pure win and one of surviving soldiers saw that fact and ran to tell Morgan about Gawain's potential betrayal (Because she declared defeat before completing her mission) but Oberon followed that Soldier and killed him to keep Gawain in the game for the moment(At least to make sure that Morgan doesn't kill her) since he has other plans for her.

Of course, for all of that to work Oberon had to leave every single faerie that lived in his forest to die one by one by Gawain's hands, but that didn't really affect him even a little bit even though they were the ones that saved his life a long time ago.

[EM - Smearing - Tactics Potency - Trap Setting - Prediction - Influence Building]

—----------

[Section 15-18]

Later, Oberon explained to Ritsuka that he was indirectly the one behind the disappearance of the army that Morgan sent to fight alongside Woodwose.

He made a deal with Koyanskaya to share information about the location of Albion's grave which was Koyanskaya's goal all along in the Lostblet in exchange to stall Morgan's army, but instead of that Koyanskaya wiped the whole army with ease(Which is also good).

Of course, the information that Oberon gave her was pure scam and she found nothing important and called it a day because she got information that the real Albion is actually Tam Lin Lancelot(Melusine).

Later in a few chapters, this turned out to be a really important thing in Oberon's plan to kill Morgan.

Also to note, Oberon was able to convince her to stay in the Lostbelt by telling her that…

[Background] [Figure]

You're looking for a weapon that can destroy the world, right?

...I really didn't want to tell you this, but right now, we need all the help we can get, even from a Beast.

I have an idea of where you can find an even stronger product that's right up your alley.

So if I were you, I wouldn't cut my losses in Britain just yet.

[Note : I think he found out about her goals using the fae eyes because I have no idea how he was able to deduce her goals so accurately]

[Fabrication - STP - EF - Prep Process - Perseverance - Decision Making - Abductive Reasoning]

[Section 11-21]

Turns out that the information about Anisel's Prophecy is still incomplete for everyone except for Oberon who knew a very important verse of it that says….

"The round fortress shall burn, and the bell of water shall appear"

“The round fortress” here represents Londinium as the Round Table Army headquarters, and “the ball of water” represents the last remaining bell of pilgrimage (A song of apology) that enhances the power of the child of prophecy.

From the moment we made alliance with the Round Table Army, Oberon kept this verse to himself while misleading us to different spots throughout the story because he needed Altria to ring the sixth bell to get stronger.

Oberon knew that if he were to share this verse with us then Ainsel’s prophecy would theoretically fail because they will try to stop it, therefore he wanted the headquarters to burn so that the sixth bell would show up, knowing very well that some soldiers will die no matter what.

So what he did exactly :

- Kept the verse to himself to be able to mislead us(Chaldea and the army) to different spots to keep the most important members alive.

- Acted as if he didn't know where the sixth bell was and he went on to search for it to not get suspicious.

- By this method, he was able to make the headquarters as vulnerable as possible to lure Morgan to attack and burn it.

- Sacrificed multiple soldiers (Including Gareth) to achieve the prophecy.

And all of that went exactly as he planned and Morgan sent an army to Londinium and burnt it, which made the sixth bell appear.

[Background] [Figure]

...And there's the sixth bell.
Well done, Altria.

..."The round fortress shall burn,
and the bell of water shall appear," huh?

[Section 24]

Oberon sensed Morgan's power throughout the battlefield which meant that she started taking the fight seriously, which also meant that Ritsuka's team just defeated one of Morgan's clones.

But Oberon knew that they will drop their guard the moment they defeat one of them, so Oberon immediately turned into his speedster form and rushed to Ritsuka's team to save Altria because he knew that Morgan will obviously target Altria, and there Oberon sacrificed his life to save Altria and vanished completely.

Later it turns out that it was a clone of himself that he made using magic to fake his death in the middle of the war.

[Concealment - Fabrication - Prediction - Tactics Management - PSI]

—----------

[Section 11-24]

[This feat covers most of his cats]

[Oberon’s Plan To Kill Morgan]

From the very beginning, Oberon knew that there was actually no way to kill Morgan face-and-forward in a battle using an army or whatever they get because Morgan is literally stronger than everyone in the Lostbelt.

So even if he were able to get every single warrior in the Lostbelt to fight against her, it would still not be enough to stand a winning chance in defeating her.

Therefore, the creation of the Round Table Army and the growth of the child of prophecy were all just a misdirection from him to distract Morgan from the real picture which she would have never predicted.

His true intentions were to kill Morgan by assassination using one of her most loyal soldiers(Woodwose) and not in a face-to-face battle, because Woodwose is the easiest one to manipulate despite being one of the strongest characters in the Lostbelt.

[I mentioned in section 11] Oberon ordered Aurora to have some time with Woodwose (As a date) to get Woodwose's trust even more since he likes her, which went successfully making Woodwose a little bit more attached to Aurora.

Now, Oberon needed to defeat Woodwose in the battlefield without killing him which he entrusted to Chaldea and the Round Table Army(without telling them not to kill him), but there was the problem of how large the armies that came with Woodwose as a back up with him.

Therefore [Explained in section 15-18 feat], Oberon decided the moment he saw the army to make a deal with Koyanskaya where she got rid of the whole army, allowing for a face-to-face fight between Chaldea & Round Table Army VS Woodwose which Oberon knew that they won't win with ease by any means because knows how strong Woodwose is since he was the one that killed him in his previous incarnation.

After they successfully defeated Woodwose, Woodwose ran for his life where Percival followed him to finish him in the river where Woodwose fell in, but Woodwose didn't die.

And there Oberon predicted that Woodwose would go to Aurora to get recovery because the one that Woodwose trusts now is Aurora, therefore Oberon and Spriggan's soldiers(keep reading to understand this part) made a clear path for Woodwose without anyone noticing which allowed Woodwose to go back to Salisbury where Aurora is.

Once Woodwose reached Aurora she welcomed him with open hands which made him so happy, and there Aurora did her second act that Oberon told her which is to tell Woodwose that Morgan didn't send an army to help(Despite the fact that she did in fact send an army) which confused the hell out of Woodwose making him question everything, and he decided to go immediately to Morgan to get answers.

But Aurora told him one last important detail :

If Her Majesty tells you she did not send reinforcements, then all is well.

Because that will mean she trusted you enough to believe you would have no need of them.

[Background] [Figure]

But...if she tells you she did send them...she is lying.

That will be a lie meant to fool you ——to conceal her decision to discard the Fang clan.

You were there. You know for certain she didn't send reinforcements. There is no escaping that truth.

If Her Majesty claims otherwise, then you will know she thinks you and your clan are worthless.

Woodwose took these words to heart because of his current feelings and the situation around him, and he immediately went to the throne room through one of the tunnels that only he and a few people knew about from the fae war.

And once he reached to Morgan he asked her :

Woodwose	Why did you not send me reinforcements? Why did you abandon the Fang clan to our deaths...?
Woodwose	Please...tell me, Your Majesty... High Queen Morgan!

On which Morgan answered :

Morgan	Reinforcements?
Morgan	Ah, you mean the attack on Londinium. What a strange thing to ask.
Morgan	I did send you reinforcements. Not that it seems to have done you any good.

Which broke Woodwose's soul completely which made him attack her immediately, piercing through her chest (while she was guard-dropped because of her trust for Woodwose) and doing a great amount of damage to her which almost killed her before Morgan stopped him by confessing her love to him and his loyalty.

And Woodwose died there completely but Morgan didn't, which leads us to the last trick that Oberon had a long time ago.

Turned out [in section 16] that Oberon and Spriggan were working together along time ago, which Spriggan had the same idea of using Woodwose to kill Morgan, but both of them knew that even that won't be enough so they used Baobhan Sith(Morgan's daughter) as a hostage which stunned Morgan on the spot allowing for the soldiers that Spriggan brought with him to slice Morgan into pieces and they kept stabbing her until she finally died.

Declaring the victory of the mission and Oberon's plan.

Oberon disguised as Merlin when Altria was 6 years old, and there he started teaching her magecraft [While he himself needed to learn magecraft as much as her(bro is a fraud)].

Merlin	Tell me, is there anything you could use right now that would make you happy?
Altria	Well... I guess I'd like it if nighttime was warmer.
Altria	My house gets really, really cold. It even freezes over in the winter.
Altria	I actually lost two toes last year 'cause of that...
Altria	Ehehe... I haven't told anyone else, though. It's too embarrassing!
Merlin	...Got it. I'll start study ——Ahem, I mean, start getting a lesson ready for you right away.
Merlin	Just give me three ——no, two days to find some teaching materials.
Altria	???

BUT, he actually succeeded in learning a lot of spells in a matter of days and he taught her all of them which helped her so much to survive.

Merlin taught me all sorts of spells.
Heating. Detection. Healing. Linguistics. Camouflage. Lockpicking. Stealth attacks. Explosives. Obstacles.
Every time I expressed interest in learning a new spell, he'd say:
"Sorry, I can't today. You'll just have to wait until the next lesson."
And then we'd make magecraft items together. Those lessons formed the foundation of my Merlin magecraft.
Looking back on it, he must have had to change the spells a lot just so I could use them with my tiny pool of magical energy.

And after a year he left her without a goodbye (Jerk).

[Section 26-29]

At an unknown point, Oberon confronted Barghest in Manchester while she was on the verge of succumbing to her curse out of grief and self-loathing from accidentally eating her sickly human lover Adonis. But considering it too early for that to happen, he sealed her memories and made her think Adonis was still alive.

Oberon knew about Barghest's curse because in his previous incarnation, he was the one that put it on her which led to the death of a lot of the faeries just like Oberon wanted.

[Section 30]

Once Oberon revealed himself and after his conversation, he said this :

Oberon Vortigern	I would need so, so many pieces to fall into place to bring down Faerie Britain.
Oberon Vortigern	Morgan and Chaldea alone just weren't going to cut it.
Oberon Vortigern	Everything had to happen at the right time, and I'd only get a single chance.
Oberon Vortigern	Even I had no choice but to watch my every step carefully.

Meaning that Oberon almost never slept the entire playthrough and the entire plan, for almost 50 days… Oberon kept watching every step that was taken in his plan to the maximum degree which was the reason for its success.

Inside Ritsuka's dream, Oberon showed up and spoke to Ritsuka about his feelings towards fairy tales and Fairy Britain.

You're right. I do feel strongly about some things.
A lot of things, actually.

Vortigern was Britain's destiny incarnate, and I was born as part of him...

I'm not just Vortigern though, you know.
I'm Oberon, too.

Did I ever tell you about what the land of the fae really is?

It's all a big, well, fairy tale.
A single story, nothing more.

A fourteen-thousand year picture book Morgan wrote just to have somewhere to belong, even if it had to be fictional.

And you people rejected it, just like you have all the others. You said it was wrong —— that it was meaningless.

I didn't like that. So much so that it even made me forget my disgust with everything.

You make up characters who behave exactly how you want, put them in the kind of stories people dream about...

Stories so good they even change your very lives...

Then you just laugh and dismiss them as nothing more than flights of fancy.

That's right. There's still meaning to be found in even the most hackneyed of kingdoms, or the most unsung side characters.

All those stories you people from reality just forgot the moment you finished the last page?

They had every bit as much right to remain afterward as anything else.

Which explains why he wanted to kill Chaldea in the end.

[Intra EM - Intrapersonal Affinity - Intrapersonal Intelligence - Naturalistic Intelligence]

Oberon has achieved his goal to destroy Britain and died as the true winner of this story.

—----------

[Every statement or off-screen feats about him(All of them are valid)]

[In his personal profile] it was stated that Oberon's lies are so perfect that they are not considered "fiction".
Of course, that is only because of his curse.

[Overall Deception]
—-------

[Tristan] Pointed out that Oberon has the nature and abilities of a Poet as him.

[VCI - Linguistic Intelligence]
—-------

[By a lot of women] Oberon is able to brighten the mood and seduce a lot of the women throughout the Lostbelt because of his social skills.

[Seduction - Social Skills]
—--------
[I am not completely sure of this feat, how did he manipulate Murian wasn't clearly explained therefore I will explain it myself]

[Murian] stated that from the beginning to the end she was manipulated and misdirected by Oberon(the true enemy) who used her feelings of hatred to kill the fang clan because the fang clan would've had a chance to stop "the great calamity" that fell on Britain the moment Morgan got killed.

[Background] [Figure]

I was...an idiot... I couldn't...keep my anger...my hatred...in check...

I'm responsible...for this...
I should have...realized...who the true...enemy was...

But instead...I was used...and manipulated...right to the end... So, at the very least ——

How he did it?[My explanation]

- Since Oberon incarnated multiple times in the past, Oberon knew of Murian's hatred towards the fang clan because they killed all her clan members, therefore he decided to use this.

[In section 22] Murian offered to take the surrendered soldiers from the fang clan to her city so that they can recover and said she is with the Round table army, but in fact… she only wanted to take them so that she would take revenge on them and kill them for what they did for her clan in the past.

Percival would've probably wanted the fang clan to join the Round Table Army, but Oberon convinced him to lend them to Murian saying "It is a good way to show how much we want peace" but he only did that so that Murian kills them as much as she wants.

And in Section 26, Oberon predicted that with the information that was spread at the moment that Murian will be able to deduce the truth about Britain, therefore he wasted no time and went to her room and killed her to avoid the possibility of her helping Chaldea to escape.

[Indirect Manipulation - EU - ER - Psychological Profiling - Info Control - Prediction]

[Things I would like to explain that was not clearly explained]

Oberon started his plan 10 years ago, he gathered information, built trust with every faerie, and slowly built the idea of fighting Morgan which was the greatest help in building the Round Table Army.

And all of that while waiting for Chaldea to come so that he can involve them in his plan and make sure of its success.

Oberon Vortigern: The more I thought about it, the more I realized that even if I could defeat Morgan, it wouldn't be enough.

[Background] [Figure]

Oberon Vortigern: I would need so, so many pieces to fall into place to bring down Faerie Britain.

Oberon Vortigern: Morgan and Chaldea alone just weren't going to cut it.

Oberon Vortigern: Everything had to happen at the right time, and I'd only get a single chance.

Oberon Vortigern: Even I had no choice but to watch my every step carefully.

[Background] [Figure]

Oberon Vortigern: But then...I saw you on that beach, and I instantly realized:

Oberon Vortigern: This guy's a total moron. The perfect performer. I just know he's going to make all my dreams come true!

Oberon Vortigern: I truly believed from the bottom of my heart that you were the worst, and best, spectator I could hope for ——one I knew would bring everything to a spectacular end!

Just to point out, I don't own Oberon and all rights belong to Type-Moon, I only own this document.

Thanks for reading, hope you have a nice day.
